SOME NATURALIZATIONS IN THE CAROLINA PIEDMONT

PRIOR TO THE REVOLUTION

By - Dr. John Scott Davenport

While most historians and genealogists who have done documentary research in records prior to the Revolution are aware that it was necessary for non-British subjects to acknowledge the King and the Church of England as supreme in a duly constituted Court, few are aware that a number of such "Naturalizations" were recorded in the North Carolina Piedmont or "Back Country" region.

In those early days, there was no port of consequence along the Atlantic Coast of North Carolina because of the peculiar nature of the tidewater area which was a mixture of shallow sounds, sand bars, and other navigation hazards. Mariners of deep draft sailing vessels in the Cross-Atlantic trade facing perilous conditions in seeking North Carolina harbors, chose instead both the better waters and more populous landings in Virginia and to the North or as far South as the fine harbor of Charleston, South Carolina.

Very little immigration by water into North Carolina direct from Europe is recorded. The mass migrations into North Carolina, especially the Back Country, were overland; down from Virginia over the Virginia road east of the Blue Ridge, down from Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and points North over the Great Wagon Road of the Shenandoah, and north from Charleston, S. C., along various paths, including the Great Wagon Road.

Generally, non-British immigrants were naturalized within a few days after arrival at or near their ports of entry. Hence, those naturalized in the North Carolina Back Country require special explanation, being either overlooked at their original ports of entry by the King's Officials or possibly having been too young to take the necessary oaths when they had arrived in earlier years. Whatever the reason, in order to enjoy the benefits of being a loyal subject of the King, it was necessary for a number of settlers in the North Carolina Back Country, predominately Germans (High and Low), to appear in Court, take the Oath of Allegiance to the King and certify that they had accepted Holy Communion from the Church of England.

A search of a number of early Court records by the author has disclosed that the following were naturalized in the North Carolina Back Country, 1770 and before:

INVENTORY OF THE ESTATE OF ANDREW HOOVER-1783

(Courtesy of Mrs. Hulda Hoover McLean, niece of President Herbert H. Hoover, and author, Genealogy of the Herbert Hoover Family, published by Stanford University, 1967. Editing and commentary by Dr. John Scott Davenport, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a descendant of Andrew Hoover, of the Forks of Uwharrie, via his son, Jacob. Dr. Davenport's great-grandfather, Henry Hoover Davenport was born in Randolph County, N. C., April 24, 1821, emigrating in that year with his parents to present-day Boone County, Indiana.)

Editor's Note: Perhaps no error in genealogy has been as steadfastly repeated as 1794 as the date of death of "old" Andrew Hoover, the patriarch of the Hoovers of Randolph Co., N. C. In that year, Jonas Hoover, Andrew's eldest son, and Margaret Hoover, Andrew's widow, conveyed to Jacob Hoover, the second son, 35 acres "all that messuage and tract in fork of Uarie, being of the tract of land of Andrew Hoover and the mill seat whereon Jacob Hoover now lives....." (Randolph Deeds, 7-263).

Yet, there is clear evidence that Old Andrew was dead at least 11 years before, for his widow, Margaret, on November 3, 1783 made two land entries, one for 50 acres bounding "her deeded land on the north", the other for 200 acres bounding "her deeded land on the east." Both entries were voided, for reasons unknown, but Jonas Hoover appears to have been granted the 250 acres on July 24, 1786 in his own name.

Jonas was inconsistent in describing his status relative to Old Andrew's Estate, for by calling himself and the widow "executors" in the deed to Jacob, he represented the existence of a Will. But in 1799, in clarifying a title given by his father when the family had moved from Frederick Co., Maryland, in 1762, Jonas described himself as "son and heir at law of Andrew Hoover.. deceased" which gave legal notice that Jonas was acting under the Law of Entail to the Eldest, a practice having no legal status in the United States.

When the Hoovers started moving north and selling out in 1801, Henry Hoover gave Benjamin Rush title to 15 acres which he described as being "on the Indian Branch, the waters of Uharee, it being part of a tract of land conveyed to Andrew Hoover, Decd., and to Henry Hoover by the Last Will and Testament of the said Andrew Hoover, bounded by the Old Lines..." (Randolph Deeds, 8-316). It apparently took Benjamin Rush almost two years to find out that Henry had sold land that was not legally his. On September 12, 1803, Jonas Hoover gave Rush another deed (Randolph Deeds, 8-366) which described what Jonas had been doing with Old Andrew's land:

(In Abstract) September 22, 1803 - Jonas Hoover, Admr. and Heir at Law, of the Estate of Andrew Hoover, Decd., to Benjamin Rush, for $1360 paid Henry Hoover by said Rush, 140 acres, part of a tract which Andrew Hoover, Decd., on the Main Fork of Uhary, purchased from Henry McCulloh which part Jonas Hoover, as heir aforesaid, gave unto David Hoover and Henry Hoover to be at their disposal as a part of what he considered to be at their disposal as a part of what he considered to be their just dividend of the landed property of the said Andrew Hoover, Decd. and which land they have bargained and sold unto the said Benjamin Rush....."

Clearly, there was no Andrew Hoover Will. As administrators of an intestate estate, Jonas and his mother (or Jonas alone after his mother's death) had sold and parcelled out the lands with an apparent disregard for the Law. Yet, if any of the many heirs took exception, they did so in the privacy of the family, for there is no record of any litigation concerning the Estate between or among Hoovers in Randolph County records extant. There are several suits for collection of debts by Jonas Hoover in 1787 and 1788 - (Minutes of Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions) which can now be identified specifically as debts owing to the Estate of Andrew Hoover, Deceased.

On January 10, 1970, Mrs. Hulda Hoover McLean, the "official" genealogist of the President Herbert C. Hoover Family, provided a copy of "An Inventory of the Estate of Andrew Hoover Deceased Returned Sept Term 1783" which was apparently found in the Old Vault at the Randolph County Courthouse in 1959 by Mrs. Laura Worth, who sent a copy to Mrs. McLean. On November 20, 1971, Mrs. McLean gave permission to use her copy for a publication in North Randolph Historical Quarterly.

Based on the following Inventory dated September 1783 and Margaret Hoover's attempt to enter land in her own name later in the same year, it seems abundantly proven that Andrew Hoover died between the June and September Terms of the Randolph County Court, 1783. He had purchased his lands in North Carolina in 1763 (Rowan Co., N. C. Deeds, 5-342, 5-343), built the Mill c1775 when his lands were a part of Guilford County (based on a bill owed by Richardson Owen which appears in the Andrew Hoover Inventory, 1783, and also in the Jacob Hoover Inventory, 1821, in the same amount, but dated "1775" in Jacob's Inventory. When Jacob had bought the Mill in 1794, he also bought the accounts).

In presenting the data following, no attempt has been made to preserve the identical form of two columns on three pages. Items, however, are as near to the spelling and capitalization as decipherable and appear in the identical sequence. Mrs. McLean advises that the original is among the historical files at the Randolph Court House.

TALES AND TRAVELS OF THE FRUIT FAMILY

We are not sure where the Fruit name first started. The earliest record we have is of Hugh and Ralph le Frueter of London, England in 1273. They were probably the keepers of fruit trees and orchards for the Kings of England. The name "Frueter" is from the French word "fruiterier", meaning a dealer in fruits. In the "Institute of American Genealogy" was found where the Fruits escaped from France in 1687 or 1689. It was in 1685 that the Edict of Nantes" (which gave the Protestants religious freedom) was revoked by King Louis XIV of France and persecution of the Protestants by the Catholics was renewed. Many thousands of French Huguenots fled to other countries in Europe and to the North American colonies. The Fruit families probably fled to Scotland where they lived some 40 to 50 years, where some of them married Scotch Presbyterian Covenanters. Then they moved to Londonderry, Ireland where they lived about 10 years. The Fruit Family then went to England where they set sail for North America sometime between 1728 to 1735, landing either in North Carolina or Pennsylvania.

John Fruit, my ancestor, was born about 1738 and died May 12, 1824 at Liberty, Randolph County, North Carolina. John is buried in the Campbell Cemetery 1½ miles northwest of Liberty. Nearby was another John Fruit stone with the date, Desc. Dec. 5, 1728. If this is right he is probably the grandfather of our "Regulator" John Fruit and was born in France. Later he fled with the Fruit Family to Scotland when a young man.

The "Regulator" John Fruit married Sibyl _____ in North Carolina. He lived on Sandy Creek near Liberty in the northeast corner of Randolph County North Carolina. In 1766-1768, the local government administrators of North Carolina became so corrupt that the "Regulators" were formed to protect the rights of the people. John Fruit was indicted as a Regulator at a special court held at New Bern, North Carolina the 11th day of March 1771. John Fruit was one of the "Regulators" who fought against England's Governor William Tryon of North Carolina in the "Battle of Alamance Creek" May 16, 1771, one of the first battles of the Revolution. The Regulators were defeated and some of the prisoners were hung, but John Fruit was pardoned along with a number of the others.

John Fruit's will made in 1818 and proved in August 1824, filed in the Courthouse in Asheboro, Randolph County, North Carolina, lists his sons: James and Thomas and daughters-Sibella (who married John Husband), Grace (who married Levi Branson), Penensiah (who married William Fagan) and Elizabeth (who married Joab Harmon).

James Samuel Fruit was born November 13, 1762 in Randolph County, North Carolina and died October 9, 1834. James is buried in Tumbridge Cemetery near Kenney, Dewitt County, Illinois. He moved with his family to Christian County, Kentucky in 1802, where he was constable and Justice of the Peace for a number of years. James married _____ Clark about 1780 in North Carolina. Their children were: John, Thomas, Elizabeth, Enoch, Edmund, Alexander, Sibella, James Jr., and Martha. His first wife died and he married Mary Reader in Nov. 1813. They lived in Kentucky for thirty years and in 1832 at the age of 70, after his children had moved to the new states of Illinois and Missouri, he placed a claim in Illinois and followed them there.

Edmund Fruit was born in Randolph County, North Carolina, November 1, 1786 and died March 10, 1861. He is buried in the Bartlett Cemetery, Edwardsville, Illinois. When he was sixteen years of age his father James Samuel and the rest of the family moved to Christian County, Kentucky. On March 31, 1809, Edmund was married in Christian County to Miss Polly Gray, a native of South Carolina, who came to Kentucky with her parents when quite young. Mary (Polly) was born February 1, 1792 and died January 15, 1832. Her parents were Col. William Gray, born about 1754 in Wilkes County, North Carolina and Polly_____. They are both buried in Crofton, Christian County, Kentucky. They had one child born to them in Kentucky and in 1811 moved to the Territory of Illinois, but on account of the Indian troubles returned to Kentucky in 1813.

In 1817, Edmund in company with his two brothers, Enoch and Alexander and John Walker started west again. Coming to Illinois, the two brothers proceeded to what is now Missouri. Edmund in the spring of 1818, located in the NE corner of section 19, Madison County, Ill. He was a farmer and in after years was a member of the Board of County Commissioners. Edmund's and Polly's children were: Cicero, Benjamin Franklin, Washington, Eliza, John, Amanda, Perry, Hefferson, Enoch, William, James, Mary and Sarah. After Polly died in 1832 he married Jane B. Robinson, daughter of Alexander Robinson of Bond County, Ill. Jane was born Feb. 22, 1802 and died October 24, 1849. Edmund's and Jane's children were: Alexander, Martha, Margaret and Henry Clay. Polly and Jane are both buried beside Edmund in the Bartlett cemetery.

Benjamin Franklin Fruit, the second child of Edmund and Polly, was born June 24, 1812 in Ill. a short time before they moved back to Kentucky because of Indian trouble. He died April 21, 1866 and is buried at Bunker Hill, Macoupin County, Ill. When he was about five years old his father Edmund and his family moved back to Illinois and settled in Madison County. Benjamin married Margaret Wright, May 29, 1834. Margaret was the daughter of David Wright, born in 1788 in New Jersey, died Sept. 1, 1872, and Sarah_____, born in 1792 in New Jersey and died Sept. 5, 1864. Both are buried at Bunker Hill, Illinois. Margaret's brothers and sisters were: Mary, Julia and John.

After they were married, Benjamin and Margaret moved to Jefferson City, Missouri where Benjamin was an overseer in the cooper shop of the penitentiary there. They made barrels and used one board for the top and bottom. He invented a machine to use small boards in making the top and bottom of the barrel. He never got much from it, as some one improved on the patent, and he was too poor to do much about it. They moved in 1845 to Bunker Hill, Ill. Benjamin's and Margaret's children were: Mary Ellen, Sarah Ann, Julia Amanda, David Edmund, Eliza Jane, Laura Margaret, Hannah Cornelia, Benjamin Franklin, Jr., Pope Dorris and Oscar Howell.

David Edmund Fruit was born May 19, 1842 at Bunker Hill, Ill. and died January 19, 1905 at Shawnee, Pottawatomie County, Ikla. At the start of the Civil War when David was 19 years old, he enlisted August 14, 1861 in company F, 7th. Regiment, Illinois Infantry as a Drummer Boy. He became a corporal August 29, 1864 at Rome, Ga. and was discharged July 9, 1865 at Louisville, Ky. David E. Fruit was in the following battles, skirmishes and events:

After the war, David became a carpenter and moved to Sullivan, Moultrie County, Illinois, where his sister Sally Chapman lived, to build houses. There he met Nancy Johnson Robison and were married December 24, 1869. Nancy's parents were Jesse Robison, born around 1790 and died in 1850 at Newcastle, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, and Hannah T. Dushane, born October 7, 1812 in Pennsylvania and died October 6, 1882 at Toronto, Woodson County, Kansas. Jesse was a widower with five children, some older than Hannah. She raised two of the five. Jesse's and Hannah's children were: Mary, Jesse, Will and Nancy Johnson. Nancy was seven years old when her father died, five year later, Hannah married Laughlin McDannel (he later changed his name to McDanel) and moved to Sullivan, Ill. Later Hannah and her two sons, Jim and Alwx McDanel moved to Woodson County Kansas.

David Edmund and Nancy Johnson Fruit lived in Sullivan, Ill. where Jesse Franklin was born October 8, 1870, then they moved to Terre Haute, Indiana where David did some carpentry work. Nancy went back to her mother's home in Sullivan, Ill. just before Larkin Elmer was born April 1, 1873. The family then moved by covered wagons to Eldorado, Kansas to build houses in the new state. Mary Anna was born there October 4, 1875. David then went on farther west to Conway Springs, Kansas where George Chapman was born March 11, 1878. In the meantime, David's mother Hannah McDanel had moved to Woodson County, Kansas. So David bought an 80 acre farm about a mile from them and built a big one room house on it and later added on to it. The farm was on creek bottom land with running water, but David wasn't a farmer so he put the boys to work farming the land. Here Ralph Wilson, b. May 25, 1881, Hattie May, b. March 26, 1883 and Howard Loren, b. June 7, 1885 were born.

The Fruit Family lived in Woodson County, Kansas until April 22, 1889, when David made the "Run" into Oklahoma and took a claim 16 miles southwest of Oklahoma City. Later the town of Mustang was formed on the farm south of theirs. Jesse Franklin Fruit now a young man of 19 made the same run and had a nice place picked out, but when he reached there some "Sooners" told him at gun point to move on. The family moved from Woodson County, Kansas to Canadian County, Oklahoma in two covered wagons, a team of mares in the lead and a team of mules behind. It took about ten days to make the trip. Nancy and the girls slept in the wagons and the boys slept under the wagons. They stayed one night in Winfield, Kansas, next to the last night in Guthrie, Okla. and the last night in Oklahoma City. Nancy had a small black bag she called her "ditty bag" where she carried all their money, about $700.00, and that was a lot of money in those days. Four year old Howard Loren dropped the bag through a hole in the wagon, but luckily the follow-up wagon saw it go out and picked it up. Six year old Hattie May saw her first Indian and Negro the same day in Oklahoma and made for cover from both of them. The Indians were stuck in the quicksand in the Cimarron River and the Negroes were walking along the road.

David took what they called the "soldier's right", he had to do some improvements and live on the farm six months out of the year for four years before he got the title for it. Wheatland and Mustang both join the farm. David bought some mules and calves, raised some corn to fatten them on and then put them on the fall market. He also had some pure blood hogs and raised some cotton. The boys doing all the farming. They had a two seated surry with two horses that they drove to Oklahoma City every Saturday to deliver eggs and butter to regular customers there.

Since the children needed to go to school, David bought a house in Oklahoma City and in September 1890, Nancy and the children-Mary, George, Ralph, Hattie and Howard moved in for school. The district where they lived had three months school for whites and three months for colored children. David and Lark batched and took care of the stock in the winter. This didn't work out so well, so David started looking for a place with timber on it and near a school. He found a place near the little town of Shawnee, Oklahoma and moved there Jan. 19, 1893. He bought the South half of the South quarter of Section 18 in Township 10 North of Range 4 East of the Indian Meridian for $825.00 from Lola G. (Beard) Wilson. This took in the area from Kickapoo to Douglass Streets and from 11th Street to the middle of the 600 block. David had an argument with Mr. Estes the owner of the farm to the north as to where the dividing street should be and since they couldn't come to an agreement, the 600 block is two blocks long. David cut walnut trees down, hauled them to Oklahoma City to be cut into planks and built a two story house facing Highland Street, later he moved the house to face Park Street with the address of 508 N. Park. Howard Loren Fruit mentioned seeing turkey and deer on the land where the present high school now stands.

NORTH CAROLINA'S CENTRAL HIGHWAY

BY
Ernest Badgett

N. C. Highway State Commission

Back in 1915 when the State Highway Commission was organized, one of the first projects it undertook was that of assuming responsibility for one of the oldest, and certainly the longest, road corridors in North Carolina, the Central Highway.

Of course, it no longer exists under that name; in fact, that was not its official name for very long. The corridor through which the Central Highway passed was already extremely old when it was named in 1911 by the General Assembly.

The name, Central Highway, gradually disappeared from the official documents of the Highway Commission during the 1920's, but the corridor, and, in many places, the actual roadway of the old Central Highway are still in constant use. Through it run some of the state's most heavily traveled highways.

Some other portions of it, many of them isolated by later realignments, are still called "Central Road," "Old #10", or "Central Street," by local people who prefer the old names to the somewhat less romantic secondary road numbers they bear today.

The story of the Central Highway is not so much the history of an old road nor is it merely a chronicle of the State Highway Commission's achievements, although they are many. It is in large measure the history of North Carolina's birth, her struggle, and her growth and development.

Most of the state's early settlers lived along the banks of the eastern rivers and navigable streams and relied primarily upon these for transportation and commerce. There was little need for roads. As settlements pushed farther into the hinterland, passageways through the vast wilderness developed. Then, as now, people traveled where the way was best.

These early pioneer paths from the eastern seaboard into the mountains and beyond followed well established trails already worn smooth by centuries of use as Indian trading and hunting paths. These in turn had developed from the traces beaten out by the hooves of countless herds of game animals during the thousands of years that came before the white man and the Indian alike.

Animals, with their strong sense of direction and their instinctual ability to seek out the course of least resistance, naturally made their trails where the obstacles were fewest and the grades easiest. In the high country, they generally followed the ridges where there is good natural drainage and a minimum of obstruction to either travel or vision. They followed the stream banks where they cut through the high mountain passes and gaps.

In the piedmont, the animal trails were usually along the banks of rivers and streams and out of the way of the thick forest tangles and undergrowth. Fast-moving herds, like the buffalo and the elk, generally preferred to travel in straight lines to accommodate their high speed. Aside from the necessary detours to avoid marshes and bogs, fallen trees, and the like, their trails showed considerable location skill.

The Indian hunter, like the game herds he followed, preferred the single-file path which disturbed the nature of things to the smallest possible degree.

With the coming of the white man, these trails were at first little improved, but later, with the increase of wagon traffic, trees and underbrush were cut to widen them into roads. Little else was done until the beginning of the present century.

The rough outlines of the route of the old Central Corridor began to become visible on maps from as early as 1775. By 1805, the route from the coast near Morehead City to New Bern, thence to Hillsborough and points west is clearly shown well into the Appalachian region.

A portion of the old Rutherfordton Trail formed a part of what was later to be known as the Central Highway from Asheville via Pigeon River Gorge to the Tennessee line. Another important link in the Corridor was the famed Jonesboro Road from Knoxville and Jonesboro, Tennessee. It joined the North Carolina road at "Morgantown", present-day Morganton, N. C. From there it followed the Central Corridor to the port. According to the accounts of travelers from the period, the road was intolerably poor in many places, but passable, if you were in no particular hurry.

Early maintenance was the responsibility of those who lived along and used the road. Obviously this system did not promote much uniformity or reliability. This condition remained the case until a time well within the memory of many senior citizens who still live along the way. The road was kept open reasonably well during the Colonial Period and for a time thereafter, but with the coming of the railroad, the so-called "common roads" fell into a dark age of neglect.

In many rural areas across the state the old east-west artery practically vanished. In some places it became so overgrown that the young folk doubted grandpa's memory when he told them that the path "from the pack-house to the spring" had once been part of a road that went from Beaufort Harbour to Knoxville and, by the way of Boone's Wilderness Road (itself a buffalo trace) to the fabled Cumberland Gap.

Paradoxically, it was also the railroads that helped keep the ancient Corridor more than an old man's dimming memory. During the earliest days of railroad building in North Carolina, a company known as the North Carolina Central Railroad laid its tracks from Goldsboro via Hillsborough, Greensboro, and Salisbury to Charlotte, incorporating the midstate arc of the old road-way corridor in its right of way.

Today, the tracks of the Southern Railway Company follow not only the midstate arc, but nearly the entire length of the Corridor. The elk and the buffalo chose their paths well.

With the advent of the bicycle and later the automobile, demands for better roads increased sharply. Before the formation of the present Highway Commission, the state's road system was under the care of the State Geologist. It was to him that the General Assembly of 1911 gave the job of locating and establishing the Central Highway.

According to the "Act to Provide for the Construction and Maintenance of a central Highway," the road was to be located as much as possible along roadways essentially the primitive pathways described above.

The Highway was to pass through Carteret, Craven, Jones, Lenoir, Wayne, Johnson, Wake, Durham, Orange, Alamance, Guilford, Davidson, Rowan, Iredell, Catawba, Burke, McDowell, Buncombe, and Madison Counties, and terminate at the Tennessee line. An alternate route at the western end of the project would follow the trail along the Pigeon River in Haywood County. A later extension sent a spur from Greensboro to Winston-Salem.

Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, the State Geologist at that time, and the newly appointed Board of Trustees for the Central Highway set out on May 8, 1911, to conduct a first-hand inspection tour of the existing roads on the route. The maintenance and construction was to be the responsibility of the counties, townships, and villages through which the Highway ran.

The quality of the road varied alarmingly from one jurisdiction to the next. Some portions were hard-surfaced 18-foot macadam roadways, others were little more than forest trails. Much of the route away from the cities looked very much like our old sawmill roads of today.

On such a road, rain was the most dreaded adversary, for one heavy down-pour could, and frequently did, make the road a death trap for man and horse alike. It was not unheard of for a man to shoot his horse which was so hopelessly mired that to try further to pull him free would permanently injure him.

The situation was slowly improving when in 1915 the State Highway Commission began its continuing program to "get North Carolina out of the mud". But North Carolina was still in the mud in many rural areas until quite recently.

In 1923 the name of the old Central Highway was changed to Route Number 10. Grading, resurfacing, and in some places, paving were added to the old road. In 1929, the road became jointly known as Number 10 and US 70 on the popular maps of the day. Although the Highway was officially recorded under the new number the old one continued to be used until the 1930's. The strip of road known today as NC 10 is only partly the same as old Number 10. In fact, the only portion of it that is the same is the stretch from Newton to SR 1826 (which, along with SR 1004, is still known to Catawba County natives as "Old #10"). There were some realignments along the route, but the road was still essentially where the Indians and the herds had left it.

The growth of such urban centers as Raleigh-Durham, Burlington-Graham, Greensboro-High Point-Thomasville, Salisbury, Hickory-Newton, Morganton, Marion, and Asheville owes much to the fact that they are all on the old Central Corridor. It is difficult to say and a little useless to speculate about whether these and other cities and towns are important because of the road, or whether the road is important because of the towns.

But, one fact stands out; those earliest "engineers", most of them four-footed, who laid down the almost exact corridor which today carries Interstate 40 and 85 as well as a main line of the Southern Railway and US 70 could hardly have cared much for "urban centers."

RELATED FAMILIES

Queen Elizabeth Nance had two brothers and four sisters.

The brothers were Cyrus and Thomas. Cyrus at the age of eighteen enlisted on June 18, 1861 in Co. L 22nd. North Carolina Infantry Regiment Confederate States of America. He was in major battles of the war including the Battle of Gettysburg. He never returned home from the War Between the States and his family assumed that he was dead.

Thomas also, was a Confederate soldier. After the war he went to New York. He was married there. His wife did not live very many years, and after her death he came back to North Carolina. After a stay in his native state he decided to go West. He first went to Salt Lake City, Utah, but after a short time there he went on to California. He took up land there, married again and raised a family. His descendants still live there.

The sisters were Margaret, Laura, Nancy Jane and Dovey Ann. Margaret in 1867 was married to Benjamin Hill Lassiter. Of this marriage nine children were born: William, Rose, Claudia, Ella, John, Lindsey, Eugene, Rossa and Thomas.

Laura was never married.

Nancy Jane was married to John Beecher. Their children were Marvin, Clay, Minnie who married a Miller and Della who married David Andrews.

Dovey Ann was married to Alson Hughes on March 18, 1854 by Martin Miller a J.P. Their children were Stephen, Franklin, Jane who married a Kearns, Armenius, Rindy who married Sam Miller and Oscar.

For other information on the Brookshire line see December 1968 Quarterly.

Early People and Churches

Colonial Records VIII

By-

Saunders

The immigrants to this region - now making parts of Alamance, Guilford and Randolph Counties - came in wagons by the emigrant route of those days from Philadelphia, through Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, bringing their household furniture and farming tools, accompanied by young men coming to seek their fortunes in this new country. These came mostly from the counties of Berks, Lancaster and Schuylkill, and a few from Maryland, from 1745 to 1760, perhaps. This was then Orange and Rowan, and these German settlements were made on the waters of Haw River and its tributaries - Alamance, Reedy Fork, Beaver Creek, Stinking Quarter, Sandy Creek, etc. These were the Albrights, Clapps, Fausts, Holts, Sharps, (Scherbs), Laws, Graves (Greff) Summers, Cobbs, (Kaubs), Cobles, Swings, (Schwenks), Cortners (Goertners), Ingolds, Browers, Keims, Staleys, Mays, Amicks (Emigs), Smiths, Stacks, Nease, Ingles, Leinbergers, Straders, Wyricks, Anthoneys, Scheaffers (Shepherds), Weitzells, Trollinger, Longs, Isley, Shaffners, Fogleman, Sthars, Brauns, Reitzells, with others.

Their first place of worship was in a log building near where Law's Church now stands on the old road from Hillsborough to Salisbury, now in the South-east corner of Guilford County. It was a union Reformed and Lutheran Church. This union was brought to an end by the divergent sentiments growing out of the sentiments and feelings that culminated in the Regulation movement and the rebellion of the colonies. Rev. Samuel Suther, who had recently come from the county of Mecklenburg, an advanced patriot, was the Reformed pastor, and under his inspiring guidance the Albrights, Goertners, Clapps, Fausts, the Scheaffers, Ingold, Schwenks and Leinbergers, who were of Reformed stock, at once moved to a schoolhouse near where the Brick Church now stands, and, there undisturbed by factional differences, erected an altar where to serve God. Suther was pastor until the close of the war, and was the animating spirit of the community. Soon this small log house gave way to a larger and more comfortable place of worship, whose corner-stones a few years since could still be seen. In these years Ludwig Clapp and Christian Faust were Elders, and Ingold and Leinberger Deacons, and even in these dark years the church grew and was prosperous. Rev. Bithahn, of Lincoln, succeeded Suther after three years. His ministry was a short one, he dying suddenly on a Sabbath evening after preaching a long-remembered sermon. His grave is in the Brick Church cemetery unmarked, and to-day no one knows his resting place. For twelve succeeding years this church was without a pastor. In this time the Rev. Andrew Loretz, with unflagging devotion four times in the year made visits to the Guilford churches and ministered to their spiritual wants. In 1801 Rev. Henry Dieffenbach became pastor, and for six years had the oversight of this church. He was a student of Dr. John Brown, the apostle of the Reformed Church in Virginia. During this time Jacob Clapp (of Ludwig) and John Greff were Elders. There was now again an interval of fourteen years during which time the visits of Rev. Loretz were again made annually until his lamented death. It is not to be supposed that these godly people were content with these infrequent ministrations. They were wont to meet in their place of worship on the Sabbath - had services of prayer and praise, when Jacob Clapp (of Ludwig) or the school-master, Scherer, read a selected sermon. In 1812 Captain Wm. Albright, an Elder of the church, a patriot captain of the war of the Revolution, was sent to attend the meeting of the Reformed Synod in Pennsylvania to secure the services of a pastor for the Clapp church, as it was yet called. The Rev. James R. Riley, a young minister was deputed by the Synod to visit all the Reformed Churches of the South. In 1813 he made the visit on horseback, coming by the emigrant route, and spent several months among the Guilford churches. On October 16th was had a memorial communion, the largest, till then, ever held in the Clapp church. Fifty-seven were added to its membership. On this occasion the old log church, large as it was, could not hold the congregation, and it had become dilapidated and uncomfortable. In their joy and gratitude the congregation proposed to erect a new frame house of prayer, but at the suggestion of Mr. Riley, it was determined that it should be of brick. From thence it was no longer the "Clapp" church, but the "Brick" church of the present day. So harmonious and liberal were the people, that no difficulty was experienced in raising the needed funds for the purpose. This was, perhaps in 1814, and in this church's palmyest days, when Captain Albright, John Clapp, Jacob Clapp, George Clapp, Barney Clapp, Col. D. Clapp, Daniel Faust and Daniel Albright were the leading spirits in the church. Still no permanent ministry could be had, owing to the paucity of preachers, and the churches were dependent on the casual visits of missionaries sent by Synod until 1821, when Rev. John Rudy became pastor of the associated churches in Orange, Guilford and Randolph. After a successful ministry of four years he returned to New York. In 1828, the Rev. J.H. Crawford, of Maryland, was elected his successor. His pastorate lasted twelve years. It was not that the pulpit service was heard in the English language. For the welfare of the church this was none too soon. In 1841, Rev. G. William Welker, the present pastor of the church took charge of it. It is a large congregation, mostly composed of the descendants of those early German immigrants from Pennsylvania. In the graveyard, hard by the church, rest in unmarked graves Tobias Clapp and Peter Goertner, who were in the Regulation battle; and there also sleep Capt. William Albright and Barney Clapp and Matthew Schwench, and others, who were soldiers in the War of the Regulation, and the passer-by who stops to read may find other humble graves of noble men, and that of George Goertner (Cortner) who was the civil leader of this community of Germans.

STONER'S CHURCH (STEINER'S)

The second church in respect of age in this charge is the "Stoner" Church. It is probable that it was organized soon after 1758, and Rev. Weyberg was the first pastor, and possibly organized the congregation, however he was preceeded by one Leinbach, a foreign German. The founders of this church were the Albrights (Albrechts), Fausts, Basons, Ephlands, Gerhards, Loys, Longs, Shaddies (Schades) Steiners, Nease, Trollingers, Sharps (Scheabe) and others whose descendants still people that fertile region on the waters of Haw River, Alamance and Stinking Quarter. These immigrants were mostly from the Counties of Schuylkill and Berks in Pennsylvania, and from Maryland. Their house of worship, in order to be central to the widely scattered settlements, was erected on the point of land formed by the confluence of Alamance and Stinking Quarter streams. The place was very inconvenient of access, and this may account largely for its future decadence. In its earliest days Jacob Albright, Peter Sharp and John Faust were the Elders; Philip Snotherly and David Ephland, the Deacons. This congregation fared as the other Reformed Churches in the colony for want of stated ministerial services, and was dependent on the occasional visits of Loretz, Hauch and others until 1821, when Rev. John Rudy became the pastor of the charge, who was succeeded three years after his dismissal by Rev. J. H. Crawford, who in turn was succeeded in 1841 by Rev. G. Wm. Welker. Owing to various causes the congregation for several years was without pastoral ministration, and the house of worship became dilapidated, but in recent years a new church building has been erected in a more accessible place, the congregation reorganized, and may yet renew its youth.

The third congregation in this charge was, as to date of origin, the

in the county of Randolph. The North-east corner of this county was peopled, as Guilford, by Germans from Pennsylvania. At an early day the Reformed and Lutherans built a union church, still known as "Richlands". Owing perhaps to the same causes that made the separation in the "Law" Church, the Reformed people soon moved to a house of their own, built near the village of Liberty, on the road that led from Guilford Court House to Cross Creek, or Fayetteville. The old log house still stands on a parcel of land containing 24 acres and 32 poles, conveyed by John Collier to the "Calvinistic congregation" for ten pounds. The deed bears date April 28th, 1791. The deed conveys the parcel of land to said Calvinistic congregation and their succeeding congregations forever, and here the Browsers, Keims, and other adherents of the Calvinistic and Reformed Churches worshipped God after the manner of their fathers. However, owing to the death of ministers this place was neglected. It was still, under the oversight of Rev. John Rudy, a living church; but was, under the succeeding pastors suffered to fall into decay, and now has no regular organization.

The other of the several churches that made this charge originally was

FRIEDEN'S CHURCH

This was a union church, and was organized soon after the Brick Church, and probably by the same minister. It was in the present Guilford County, about ten miles North-east of the Brick Church. It was known as "Stahmaker's" Church. The Reformed families in this vicinity were the Weitzells, Wyricks, Straders, DeWalds, and others, who here were wont to worship until the congregation, by neglect, was under the ministry of Reverend Crawford, suffered to disintegrate. However, in 1855 under the ministry of Rev. G. Wm. Welker, this congregation of his (the Guilford) charge was reorganized. Gideon DeWald and William Weitzell were chosen Elders; John Clapp, Duncan Troeler and Joshua Weitzell, Deacons. For the convenience of its members the Reformed congregation, after a few years, removed to the neighborhood of Boon's Station, and built a sanctuary of their own, known as Saint Mark Reformed Church.

Ed. Note: Mr. Calvin Hinshaw has done much work on a book of the Brick Church now being run in the "North Carolina" by William Perry Johnson, Box 1770, Raleigh, North Carolina.

RESOLUTIONS

Resolutions in memory of our Brother W. W. Redding who died December 17, 1897 by Naomi Sunday School.

Whereas God In his infinite wisdom has taken from us our beloved friend and brother W. W. Redding. Be it resolved:

First - That we will be in humble submission to His will.

Second - That we will ever hold in tender regard the memory of our beloved brother who was so faithful to his Sunday School and Church, and that we will try to emulate his example of charity and kindness and that while we mourn our loss we will look for the resurrection and the promise meeting of friend with friend.

Third - That a copy of these resolutions be sent the bereaved family, a copy spread upon the minutes of the Sunday School, and that we ask our county paper and the Christian Advocate to publish them.

BOOK REVIEW

"HISTORY OF SNOW CAMP, N. C." compiled by Mrs. Juanita Owens Euliss -1971
$2.00 48 pp Sponsored by: Snow Camp Historical Drama Society, Box 535,
Snow Camp, N. C. 27349.

Snow Camp is a small community in the southern part of Alamance County, North Carolina. Possibly named when hunters, who were in this area before it was settled were forced to stay during all ice and snow storms.

An old community, Simon Dixon was living in his cabin on Cane Creek by 1750 - Coming from Pennsylvania he brought his mother, stepfather, John Stanfield, two sisters and wife Elizabeth Allen Dixon.

Seven days after the Battle of Guilford Courthouse, Cornwallis made his headquarters in Simon Dixon's house.

Some of the early families written about in the book are Allen, Stout, Thompson, Griffin Foust, Stuart, McPherson, Lindley, Pierce, Pike and others.

Churches, Cane Creek Friends Meeting, Rocky River Friends Meeting Bethel United Methodist Church, Freedom's Hill Wesley Methodist, Rock Creek, Methodist and others.

Education, industry post offices, old mills are all included in the booklet.

Mrs. Euliss has done a splendid job in compiling data of this old community, rich in history for two centuries. As Dr. Algie I. Newlin, Professor Emeritus of History, Guilford College and author of "The Newlin" book, says in the foward he has written for this book Mrs. Euliss' purpose for the booklet was to give an introduction to the riches of the past and stir an interest in the history.

If you have an interest in Alamance, Old Cane Creek, this area of N. C. and its people, I recommend this booklet.

BOOK REVIEW

"Know Your Ancestors - A Guide to Genealogical Research" By Ethel W. Williams
Ph. D. Printed by: Charles E. Tuttle Company, Rutland, Vermont. 275 pages 1960
$5.50.

"Know Your Ancestors" was written as a guide for a course that Mrs. Williams was teaching for Family History classes in a school for adults and will be found to be very well done, attractively presented and a continuity of format that will serve both the beginner or advanced researcher as a general guide to methods to use in tracing family history and genealogy. It is one of the best books this reviewer has seen not only in showing the beginning researcher how to go about starting his research but the more advanced student in the careful searching that must be done to have an accurate and truthful record of their work.

While the primary purpose of this book is to acquaint one with the principles of original research in American genealogy, the chapters on research in Canada and the British Isles, and on Heraldry, will be very helpful.

There are twenty-six chapters in the book and Mrs. Williams has written, in detail, the value, use and how to obtain records of county, state, and federal vital, land, probate, church records. Chapter thirteen deals with the Quaker records which is important for those searching in our area of North Carolina.

Very knowledgable and well done are the chapters on trailing ancestors, by pattern of settlement and records through the states of New York, New Jersey, Penn.. Ohio and the western states.

There are eighty-six pages of Bibliography and a good Index

This book will be very useful for any genealogist and certainly should be on all library shelves.

Book Review

"The Mary and John - A Story of the Founding of Dorchester, Massachusetts, 1630" by Maude Pinney Kuhns - Published 1971 by: Charles E. Tuttle Company, Rutland, Vt. $12.00

The story of the "Mary and John" has been told many times, and this book was intended to be genealogical rather than historical and yet history could not help but creep in the record. There is no official list of the passengers that sailed on the ship but from various sources, traditional, documentary, and circumstantial, the lists have been compiled. It is said that there were one hundred and forty people aboard the boat but we do not know if they counted babies and small children. on some of the latter boats we do know that it was a practice to allow two small children to go for one fare and babes in arms went free. Perhaps this was the case of the "Mary and John".

The principal authority for the voyage is Roger Clap, who was one of the party, and who wrote his oft-quoted Memoirs. But even he names only six of his fellow passengers: Reverend Maverick, Reverend Warham, Edward Rossiter, Roger Ludlow, Israel Stoughton and Captain Southcote.

The good ship Mary and John, out of Plymouth, England, on the memorable 20th of March, 1630, had one of the most successful sea journeys ever undertaken, for it brought to America a group of 140 men and women destined to make and help mold early American history.

This group, "by the good hand of the Lord, through the deep comfortably," arrived in Boston Bay two weeks before Governor Winthrop, and in June selected Savin Hill as the site for their settlement. At the time it was known as Mattapanock, but they named it Dorchester.

On the roster of the Mary and John were many illustrious names of the times who bequeathed to America even more illustrious descendants. They live all over America today and have left an indelible imprint on the pages of American history.

The passenger list in the book lists one hundred sixty names. The origins of the many prominent New England families include: Allen, Bradford, Clap, Deane, Ellsworth, Ford, Griswold, Holcomb, Ingersol, Jones, Kuhns, Loomis, Moore, Newberry, Osborne, Phelps, Quateman, Robinson, Strong, Trescott, Upsall, Vincent, White.

There are 56 ancestral charts of the Mary and John passengers in this book and I feel this could be one of the most important such lists ever compiled. I recommend this book most highly for genealogist shelves, for gifts, for everyone.
