Dies In Harness

Bethel Methodist Church,

Long Service

REV. J. A. WOOSLEY.

REV. J. A. WOOSLEY DIES AT HOME HERE

Beloved Pastor of Bethel
Church Dies While Singing
Familiar Old Hymns.

CAUSED BY PNEUMONIA

Rev. J. A. Woosley, pastor of the Bethel and Grace charge of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, this city, died at his residence on Second street yesterday morning after an illness of one week with pneumonia. The deceased was nearing his 70th birthday anniversary and for 41 years had been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The minister's death was an unusual one. Noted throughout his life as a great lover of singing, he died while the words of hymns old to the Methodist church came from his lips. From 1 o'clock until the hour of his death yesterday morning he sang almost constantly those hymns that had been a stay and comfort to him during the active years of his life.

It was devotion to duty, probably, that caused the minister to be taken with his fatal illness. On January 13, a week and a day before he died, against the advice of physicians and the members of his family, he went to the missionary institute conducted at West Market Street, Methodist Episcopal church, believing it would be of benefit to himself and his charge to hear the discussion. He contracted pneumonia as a result. His friends expressed a desire to always express a desire to "die in harness," these friends added, and that was the way he met death.

He was born on June 13, 1867, in Rradia township of Lexington county. When 16 years old he was converted at old Mount Olivet church, Davidson county, leading his father to the altar at the same time, both professing a faith they retained and helped spread during the remainder of their lives.

He married Miss Pauline Fisher, of the Friedburg community of Davidson county, they having been friends from childhood, as their homes were but one mile apart. He joined the Methodist Episcopal conference of the North Carolina conference of the session held at Statesville in the fall of 1883 and had entered on his 44th year of ministerial labors when tricken. During this long term of service he had served many congregations and had been instrumental in raising hundreds of persons to join the church. He was a tireless worker, and a very energetic one—a firm believer in the faith.

Six children, three boys and three girls, survive. They are: O. V. Woosley, of Lexington, superintendent of Sunday schools of the Western North Carolina conference; Mrs. A. M. Wagoner, of Walkertown, Forsyth county; Mrs. C. M. Webber, Danville, Va.; Prof. John B. Woosley, member of the faculty of the University of North Carolina; Rev. N. B. Woosley, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Boone, Watauga county, and Mrs. W. B. Hall, of High Point. Several brothers and sisters also survive, they living in Davidson and Forsyth counties.

The funeral service will be held at Mount Olivet church, where the minister first professed faith, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. In the absence of the presiding elder of the Greensboro district, Rev. J. B. Craven, who is in New York on business, the funeral will be in charge of three former presiding elders under the able guidance of Rev. W. F. P. Womble, of Newton; Rev. W. A. Newell, Mount Airy, and Rev. A. W. Plyler, of Greensboro. They will be assisted by Rev. R. C. Goforth, pastor of the circuit of which the Mount Olivet church is a part. Interment will follow in the church cemetery.

... Navy aims to be near. But Seaman Sueta was far away, stationed aboard the aircraft carrier, U. S. S. Randolph, off the coast of Cuba. Mildred's doctor was troubled, too. He was aware that a difficult and complicated delivery was in prospect—one that might call for a caesarian section operation. He also wanted Mildred's husband near—just in case.

He picked up his telephone and called the local chapter of the American Red Cross. Could the hospital help get the young man home on an emergency leave? His request set into immediate motion that agency's machinery for aiding servicemen.

Approved Leave

A telegram was dispatched to national headquarters in Washington. The Red Cross home service correspondent there got in touch with naval authorities, who approved the leave and made arrangements to get the young sailor on a speedy journey home.

Thanks to the American Red Cross

Ed Stuetz, at his wife's side, complete delivery of the baby, a girl, was accomplished without unusual difficulty. It was named Carlina Ann.

The Red Cross was chartered to help.

Dear High Point: For six weeks now I've tried to think of words to express my thanks for all you've done for me and my family during the darkest period of our lives. Many times I was too sick to think, too sick to feel the warmth that my city sent my way. Now I am home with my family and happier than I've been in four months. Much of the credit for my improved condition goes to you who have done so much... You who have encouraged me in my struggle...

... you who have made me understand the meaning of true friendship—true High Point friendship. Since they let me come home a week ago, I have searched for words to tell you the way I feel... to tell you how deeply I appreciate your kindness... to let you know how much you have helped. But all I can think of is Thanks... and God bless you all. And I pray that soon I will have strength to start repaying you for your goodness. —Nick Lawrence

By JOE BROWN
Enterprise Staff Writer

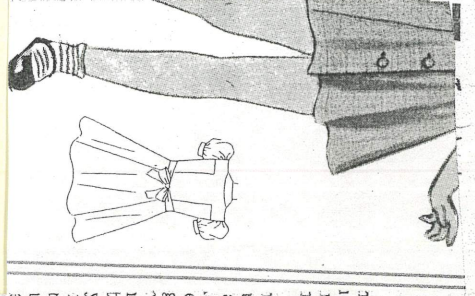

A young textile mill worker was burned to death shortly before noon today when a tractor with which he was plowing turned over on him and caught fire.

Neighbors identified the dead man as R. L. Harrell, about 24, of near Trinity. He was doing some work for David Johnson at the latter's home about a half mile northwest of Hillsville just off the Flint Hill Road, about six miles south of Archdale.

According to neighbors, Harrell was using the tractor to plow a small, hilly field at the rear of the Johnson home. The tractor turned over at the edge of the field where the land drops off to a lower level.

The neighbors surmised that Harrell attempted to jump clear but was unable to do so. His shoulder was caught beneath a wheel and he became entangled in the steering mechanism.

Because of the intense heat and danger of an explosion, it was impossible to get the tractor moved in time to save the driver. The Gull-Rand Fire Department was called to extinguish the blaze. Attendants of Cumby-Orrrell Funeral Home after the coroner was called to the scene said they arrived right at noon and that the tractor was still ablaze. They called Randolph County Coroner T. R. Farlowe who arrived shortly before 1 o'clock. The body, bu beyond recognition, was to be turned to the Cumby-Orrrell Funeral Home after the coroner was given permission to move it. Neighbors said that Harrell survived by his wife and one child. He was employed at the Asheville Weaving Company on the sec

Large Crowd On Hand For Family Reunion 1943

Out of state people, greetings, memorials, prizes and persons three score years and ten, and older, took the limelight of the 28th annual reunion of the Bulla, Farlow and Millikan families last Sunday at New Market school near Sophia. A jammed packed crowd filled every available seat in the school auditorium, besides every extra chair in the entire school building.

Mrs. Vadhia F. Farlow, Sophia, president, presided over the gathering and Ralph L. Bulla, Asheboro, program chairman, conducted both morning and afternoon programs.

Out of state people in attendance were Frank Bulla, Grand Junction, Colo.; Charles Bulla, Pittsburg, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Millikan, Beaumont, Texas; Mrs. Mandy Millikan, Tussey and daughter, Mrs. Helen Laird, Savannah, Ga.; Gunney Millikan, Mrs. O. M. Chinedist and daughter Janice, of Salem, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. David Lewallen and daughter, April, Portsmouth, Va.; Ray H. Fentress, Jr., Camp Pickett, Va.; and Mrs. Mary Belle Kivett Tober, formerly of Pittsburg, Pa., but more recently of Asheboro.

Prizes were awarded youngest member, 2 months old Belinda Sue Bulla, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bulla and great-granddaughter of Emma property immediately adjacent to the township line.

The Board of Education requested the commissioners to advise it as to the location of the Asheboro township line and the request was refused, the statement issued by the Board of Education said. Richardson's letter refusing the request was read at the Board of Education meeting Monday afternoon. The letter stated that the township lines were "clearly defined and clearly marked."

"If the township lines have ever been surveyed and a map has been inferred in Richardson's letter, the Board (of Education) feels that the commissioners should provide it with a copy of the map," the Board of Education's statement said.

The board's statement concluded by declaring: "The statement to the press with respect to action having been deferred by the Board of Education on the Cedar Grove and Spero requests was in error. These requests were given consideration at the board's Monday meeting which was the next regular meeting following their receipt from the City Trustees and action was taken promptly by the Board of Education."

The Board of Education countered with the statement that it has been unable to secure an official map "which accurately defines the boundary lines of Asheboro township," and it voted to request the commissioners to supply such a map "showing the lines of the township."

Washington Set Social Rules as a Bashful Boy

By HAL BOYLE NEW YORK.—George Wash- ington, now known as the Father of His Country, once was a teen- age boy himself. And like the teen-ager of today, he was a bit of a bashful boy. He was as shy as a mouse when it came to the subject of love. He was a bit of a bridge the gap between boyhood and manhood then as it is now—perhaps even more so.

What did young George do about it? He decided to improve himself by drawing up his own code of behavior. At the age of 16 he had left his widowed mother to live with his half-brother at Mt. Vernon. The young boy felt ill-at-ease in the sparkling Virginia society.

So he took a goose quill pen and wrote in his copybook his now famous 110 Rules of Civility and Decent Behavior in Company and Conversation. Written in shaky grammar and spelling, some rules were copied from an English etiq- uette book. Some the young Wash- ington made up himself. But by following them the earn- est youth became one of the most courtly men of his time. His copy- book maxims have recently been reprinted in a small beautiful vol- ume by Lewis Glaser of New Har- ven, Conn.

Some are quaint and old-fashion- ed now. Others will always remain pertinent in civilized society. Here are a few of the youthful George's teen-age tips to himself: Every action done in company ought to be with some sign of re- spect to those that are present. In the presence of others sing not to yourself with a humming voice. Some are quaint and old-fashion- ed now. Others will always remain pertinent in civilized society.

MRS. ROBBINS RITES CONDUCTED TUES. AFTERNOON

Well-Known Woman Buried At John Wesley Stand Beside Husband

ONLY TWO SURVIVORS

Mrs. Rachel Elmira Millikan Robbins, wife of the late Thomas F. Robbins, who was familiarly known throughout this section as "Em" Robbins, was buried Tuesday afternoon at John Wesley's stand, following funeral services at Parlow Funeral Home.

Mrs. Robbins, who would have been 80 years of age on September 6, died Sunday evening at the home of a daughter between Ashboro and Randolman.

Mary relatives and friends from this section of the state and out of the state gathered in honor of this older and long-time resident.

Rev. Avery Brown, pastor of Bailey's Grove Congregational church, near which Mrs. Robbins resided, and representatives of the Church of the Lattic Day Saints, officiated at the funeral services.

Palbearers were nephews and they included Ralph Bulla, Frank Bulla, Jim Bulla, Brooks Underwood, Hanford Underwood and Joe Rich.

Mrs. Robbins was actively identified with the church and tabernacle at John Wesley's Stand until it became extinct a few years ago, she and her late husband having given the land for the erection of the church building and the tabernacle.

Although John Wesley's Stand had ceased to be a place of worship, she retained her interest in the site and it was fitting and proper that she should be re-buried there for her final rest.

A daughter of the late Dan and Ann Millikan, prominent earlier residents of Back Creek township and the county, Mrs. Robbins was one of twelve children, six sons and six daughters.

She was a twin sister of the late Mrs. Louisa Elvira "Vid" Cox, of Greensboro, who predeceased her twin sister in death by ten years.

For number of years, Mrs. Robbins at birthdays of Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. Cox were celebrated with themselves and their four sisters as the major participants in an annual event of great significance.

This event continued in honor of Mrs. Robbins even after Mrs. Cox's death, with the remaining sister, Mrs. Mary Ward, Ashboro, joining with Mrs. H. Asmeyer, of the annual affair.

One brother, Gurney L. M. Kar, of North Ashboro, also lives out of the original family.

Millikan sons and daughter, with the passing of "Em" Robbins, it is as if a landmark fallen. The indomitable and courage which characterized her life steadied the lives of those who came in contact with those who never despaired, despite adverse circumstances, with which she might be confronted and it was in this manner that she faced both life and death.

Her going has removed a pillar of strength. Only the sustaining influence of her memory now remains to assist her children, her other relatives and friends.

SITUATED IN A SQUARE OF CEDAR TREES, a new meeting house (top photo) is being constructed by the congregation of the Cedar Square Friends Meeting. The congregation today has moved back into the old school building (lower photo) until the new church is completed.

CONGREGATION DOING WORK Cedar Square Quakers Are Building New, $50,000 House For Meetings

BY ALMETTA COOKE BROOKS
HIGH POINT, March 7.—The Cedar Square Monthly Meeting of Friends is getting a new, $50,000 meeting house.
And the congregation, which is over 100 years old, is building it themselves—seeking donations of money, labor and materials where possible.
The old frame church building has been sold and moved away and the new structure is being placed at the same site—in a square of cedar trees from which the meeting took its name. Meanwhile, the congregation, of around 80 persons, has moved back into the little school house next door—where their meeting first originated and which has been so closely identified with the Quaker history in the community it would be impossible to separate the two.

It became a monthly meeting and church are making a wool quilt that will be sold to the highest bidder, and each bidder is getting his name on the cover. And there are individual projects, such as Mrs. James Whitesell's apron which will soon be covered with names and be given to the person placing the highest bid.
Actual construction has been going on for about seven weeks and between 10 and 12 men show up for work daily, giving freely of their time. Some firms in this area have donated materials, and others have sold them at cost. Since most of the men in the community are farmers, construction was started before they need to be cultivating their fields.

Two years ago the congregation decided to build a new church and has been raising funds through community suppers and other events. Today the women of the School classes.
In 1908 these Quakers had built themselves a new school house. When their educational efforts were taken over by the state and their children started attending a consolidated school, the site and building were purchased by Talton Cox and deeded to the Cedar Square church. The congregation remodelled the building and used it for Bible School classes.

Worshipped In School
Long before the Civil War Aaron Stalker, for a number of years, superintendent of New Garden Boarding School (now Guilford College), deeded two acres of land to the board of education of Stalker's School House, to be located on what is now Route 3, High Point. The school opened in a log house and a few years later the Marlboro Monthly Meeting of Friends requested the Southern Quarterly Meeting to establish a place of worship there.
The meeting, then called Muddy Creek, held worship in the school building twice weekly and during the mid-week services schoolteachers and pupils laid aside their books to join in. Later the congregation purchased two acres of land adjoining the school property and in 1876 completed a meeting house. The next year the name was changed to Cedar Square. In 1923 Samuel M. Miss Mary Belle Davis Retires After 33 Years

Miss Mary Belle Davis, 209 Oak Street, has retired after 33 years continuous service with Adams-Willis Corporation.
Miss Davis was employed in January, 1919 just after the close of World War I. She started as a palmer and was later transferred to the job of selecting samples for the Sample Department.
Miss Belle, as she is affectionately known to her friends, has missed only one week from work, that due to a tonsillotomy several years ago. Except for occasional days due to sickness or emergency in the family, her attendance record has been perfect. Outstanding, too, is her record of a third of a century without an accident.

MISS MARY DAVIS

Miss Davis, who retires on basis of age, will receive retirement benefits provided by the Profit Sharing Plan of Adams-Willis. The amount of her benefits can not be determined until the distribution of company contributions for this year has been made.
Miss Davis recalled many improvements which have been made during her time of employment, installation of elevators, water coolers, engineered lighting, better work tables and chairs, and many others.

Only plain cotton stockings and socks were being made at Plant One when Miss Belle first started work. There were no designs nor clock work then, just plain cotton goods in five or six colors. "I have seen literally thousands of patterns, styles and color combinations."
"In one way, it seems like it has been a long time, but then in other ways, it seems like it was just a few months ago I came to work. I have enjoyed every day of it. We have had such a fine group of people with whom to work."
"I'll be like a fish out of water," she answered when asked about her plans.
"Oh, I am going to rest some, and then do some of the things I have always wanted to do. I might go fishing part of the time. One thing certain, Miss Davis will continue to give much of her time and interest to the Central Friends Church where she has been a member for several years.

Coroner's Jury Ref John Hill Shot Her

A second tragedy occurring in Randolph county within three days was discovered Tuesday night at the home of John Hill, a mile south of Trinity. Mrs. Julia Hill, 25-year-old mother of two children, was found dead, her head pierced by a bullet fired from a gun her husband says was in her own hand. The first news of Mrs. Hill's death came when Mr. Hill ran to the home of Mrs. S. G. Lohr shortly after 8:00 o'clock, awakened her by calling her through her window that "Julia has killed herself."

Mrs. Lohr and her son got up, called Jack Hughes, who lived across the road, and went into the room where the body lay slumped against the stove. None of the trio saw the pistol at that time, but Hill told them that Mrs. Hill stood in the front door, shot herself in the mouth, and threw the pistol into the yard. He said she was on the back porch at the time. He spent most of the time while the girls were in the house wandering about the yard as if looking for the weapon.

He followed up the group, in the house, took hold of his wife by the pulled up her head, she said, his knees, and said, "Julia, say something." The woman was dead. The body was covered up and all help while help was summoned. Meanwhile Hill continued his search for the pistol in the yard while the other three went in different directions for help. For something like five minutes no one was about the house but himself, the children having been taken in by Mrs. Lohr. They had no sooner gotten into the house when the little girl, age eight, said, "Miss Lohr, papa killed our mama. He took her by the hand, and shot her in the mouth." The little boy, age six, verified the statement. The children were in a nervous state and did not testify before the coroner's jury Tuesday night but Mrs. Lohr told of what they had said to her.

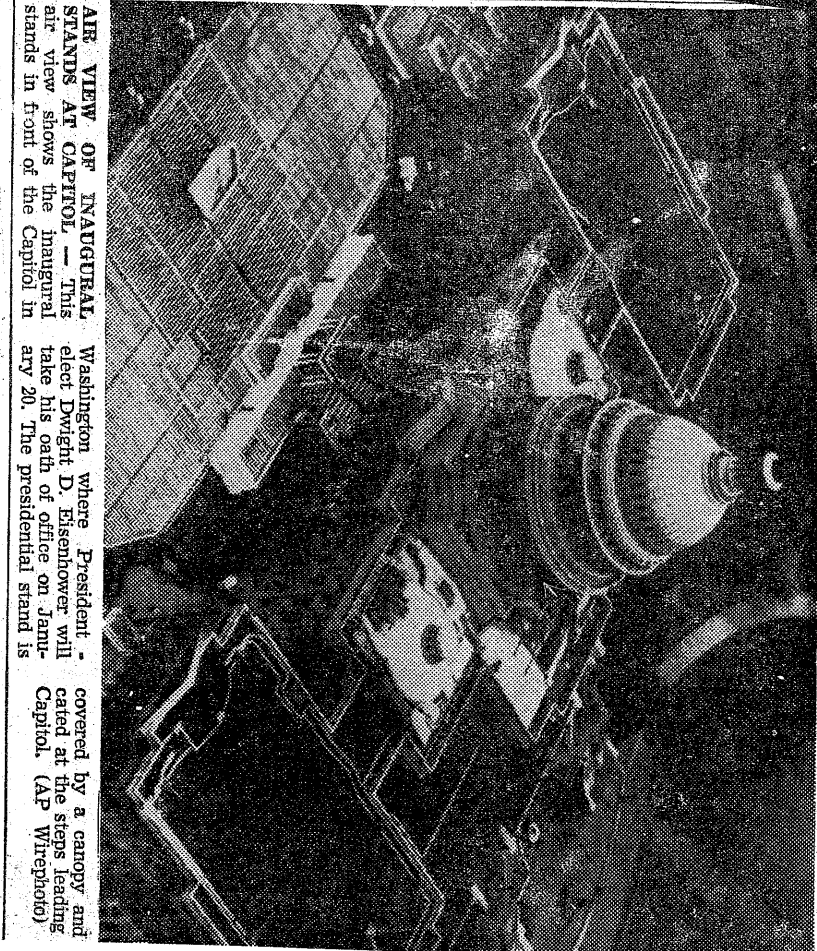

When additional help came, including the sheriff's deputies, the house was entered again, someone at the window having said they saw a movement under the sheet over the body. Investigation, however, showed the woman was dead. The pistol then was lying in plain view by the body. Members of the coroner's jury studying the tragedy are H. M. Crawford, R. L. Welborn, W. M. Wood, Claude Vanceaman, Gunney Chinnard and H. C. Boss, Assisting Coroner Barnes was Sheriff C. E. King.

Mrs. Hill was married to Hill, a furniture worker unemployed for some time, nine years ago and according to evidence at the hearing Tuesday night often abused her. She was pictured as a patient and kindly woman.

She was born in Montgomery county, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Merton. She is survived by one son, her mother, and her father.

FARMER, June 30.—A twenty-year-old Route 3, Denton, youth became Randolph County's 12th highway fatality for 1955 early this morning when he died in a wreck between New Hope and Martha, just off Highway 49 west of Farmer.

The victim was Willis Russell, 20, who was found dead, about 75 paces from the vehicle as it lay, nearly demolished, across the dirt road.

Highway Patrolman C. O. Moore, who investigated, said the accident was discovered about 4 a.m., today, and it was estimated that it happened about two hours before that time.

Russell, Moore said, was riding with Earl Edward Hill, also 20, of the same address. Hill was found lying unconscious on the right side of the car. Moore did not indicate who was driving or the owner of the vehicle, a 1940 Ford that was a total loss.

"They probably ran too fast and went to sleep," Moore said, "and they rode straight off the road, and then about three hundred yards, rolling over several times."

Finally they pulled back to the right, Moore said, travelling nearly 70 more yards before finally coming to a halt.

Hill was taken to a Lexington hospital for treatment of severe lacerations and abrasions and possible other injuries. Funeral arrangements for Russell were incomplete at presslime.

Another wreck occurred about two miles from the scene of the fatal accident, on Highway 49 about three miles west of Farmer, when a 77-year old Route 3, Denton man drove from a sideroad into the path of a tractor-tanker, causing the tanker to spin and crash.

Moore said the wreck occurred when C. E. Loflin drove in to the highway without stopping, and the truck, driven by William T. Everhart, of Route 8, Lexington, swung aside to miss Loflin's car, skidded and wrecked.

The transport, hauling several thousand gallons of hot tar to Randleman, was owned by Maybelle Transport Company of Lexington, Moore said, and about a thousand gallons of the hot stuff spilled onto the road before salvage could begin.

Loflin was charged with entering the highway without right of way and driving without glasses on a restricted license, while Everhart, who admitted travelling a little too fast, was charged with speeding 50

MRS. HAROLD L. FARLOW

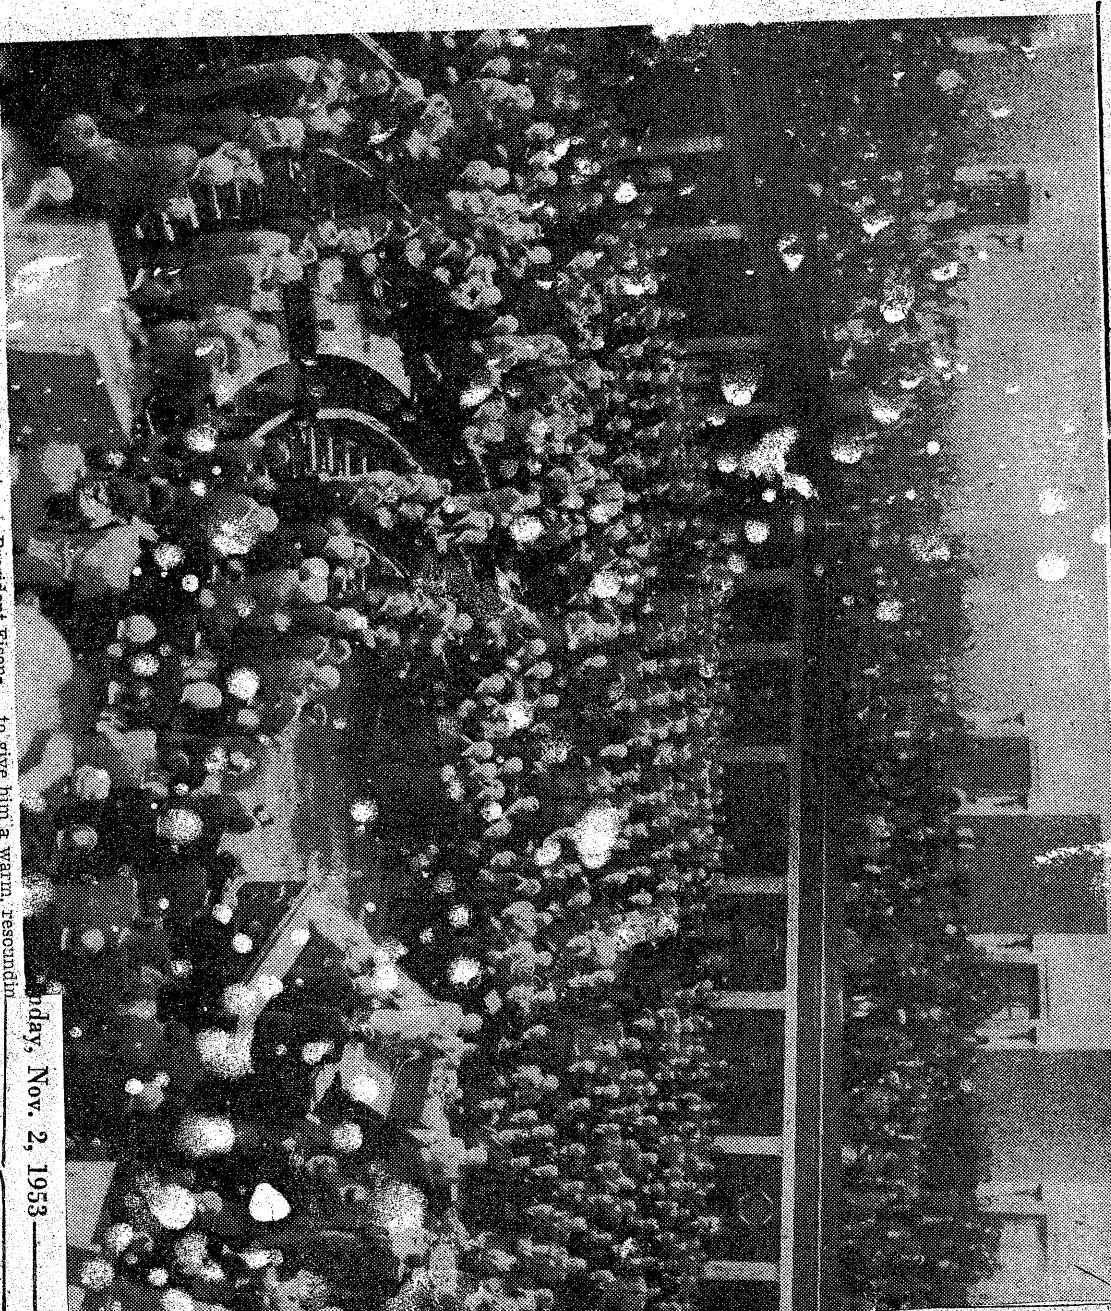

Miss Ann Renfrow Exchanges Vows With Mr. Farlow

HIGH POINT, June 8.—Miss Ann Renfrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wade P. Renfrow of Raleigh, former residents of High Point, was married to Harold L. Farlow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey W. Farlow of Trinity, in an informal ceremony in High Point on Sunday, June 7, at 5 p. m.

The ceremony, attended by close friends and relatives, was held in the Burgess Chapel of First Methodist Church with the pastor, Dr. Kenneth Goodson, hearing the vows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an Alice blue lace, street length gown. She carried a white prayer book topped with a purple orchid. Escorted by her father she met the bridegroom at the altar, attended as best man by Robert Renfrow, brother of the bride. There were no other attendants.

The couple left for San Antonio, Texas, where they will make their home. Mrs. Farlow is a graduate of Stevens College in Columbia, Mo., and until her marriage was employed by the Farmer's Co-operative Exchange in Raleigh. Mr. Farlow is with the United States Air Force, stationed at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio.

Oh Pawpaw, what happened to Santa Claus?" he tearfully asked his grandfather, T. C. Burnett, superintendent of the Asheville Warehouse near which the accident happened. Burnett tried to assure David that Santa was all right as he drove toward the scene.

When the Burnetts arrived, David tearfully rushed to Santa Claus and asked: "Are you hurt, Santa? What's wrong with your face?"

Santa's beard was awry from the fight and his face was red from the stifling temperatures. He assured David, though, that he was unharmed.

After Santa had readjusted his beard, David was convinced all was right in the world again.

Then he took care of two missions.

He told Santa he would like to have a tractor with pedals for Christmas.

And then he stuck his hands in Santa's beard to protect them against the numbing cold.

Mother of Two Children Shot to Death Near Trinity

Mrs. Lula Hill Killed By Bullet Wound Tuesday Night, While Children Witness Tragedy

HUSBAND ARRESTED

Mrs. Lula Hill, 25 year old mother of two children, was killed Tuesday night about 8 o'clock by a bullet from a gun, which her husband, Jim Hill, says was in her own hand. The two children witnessed the tragedy, which occurred in their little two-room house about a mile south of Trinity. The children say that their father killed their mother.

First word of Mrs. Hill's death came shortly after 8 o'clock, when Mrs. S. G. Larr, who lives about 100 yards from the Hill home, and called for help saying his wife had killed herself.

Mrs. Lohr and her son, summoned Jack Hughes, a nearby neighbor, and the three went to the scene of the tragedy, where they found the body of Mrs. Hill slumped against the stove. It is said that these people, who were the first to reach the scene and view the body, did not see he pistol at that time, but Hill told them Mrs Hill stood in the front door, shot herself in the mouth and threw the pistol into the front yard. He said he was on the back porch at the time the shot was fired.

Reports indicate that Hill spent most of the time, while others were in the house, wandering about the yard, and was believed to be looking for the pistol.

The body was covered up, and every one except Hill left the house to summon more help.

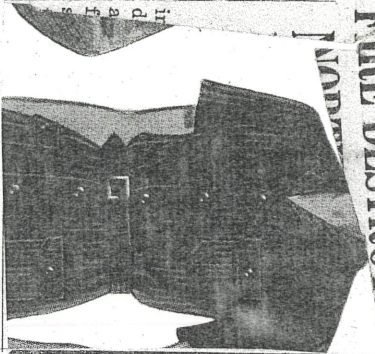

Mrs. Lohr took the children home with her, and said the 8-year-old girl said, "Miss Lohr, papa killed our mama. He took her by the hair and shot her in the mouth." The little boy, age 6, verified the story. In a short time, additional, including officers, arrived and entered the house, and it was there they saw the pistol in plain view lying by the body of the dead woman.

Hill, still in an intoxicated condition, was arrested shortly after the shooting was discovered, and was taken to the High Point jail, but later removed to Asheboro and placed in jail here.

A coroner's jury, empaneled Dr. Tiffany Barnes, Randolph County coroner, made an investigation Tuesday night, and adjourned until Wednesday at 2 o'clock, which time they reached the verdict that Mrs. Hill was killed by a bullet fired by the hands of party or parties unknown to the jury.

Mrs Hill, native of Montgomery county, was married to Hill six nine years ago, and according to evidence he often abused her. He a furniture worker, and had been unemployed for sometime.

LETTER BOX

MR. BARKER WRITES

Editor Courier-Tribune: I have noted with interest the testimony of G. C. Graham, of Coleridge, in regard to the dangers of alcoholism in connection with Communism. Both are fruits of a corrupt, unreformed and spring from the same root, and the tree needs to be made good to produce good fruit.

To destroy these and all other evils, The God of righteousness must take the place of the god of lust and mammon. It is the love of money, and the little regard for the lost souls, the ruined lives and homes that prompts the distillers, the dealers.

Sophia, Rt. 1, News Items

Sophia, Rt. 1, Aug. 5.—Revival services will begin at Marlboro Friends Meeting House Sunday morning, August 9, at 11 o'clock. The pastor, Rev. John Pipkin, will be assisted by Rev. Orville Jillion as evangelist. The services will continue each evening at 8 o'clock through Saturday. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Shural Nelson, who was buried at Marlboro last Friday. Mrs. Nelson is confined to her home by illness.

Mrs. Bill Denham and children have returned to their home in Camden, N. J., after a few weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Davis.

David Walker was honored on his 77th birthday Saturday at his home when his children, grandchildren and other relatives gave him a birthday dinner. This is an annual affair and was greatly enjoyed by everyone. Mr. Walker is the last member of a large family left. Mrs. Colon Farlow, Mrs. David Davis, Mrs. H. A. ers, and those who license the liquor traffic, to perpetuate the evil, and the people in general to tolerate the same. When we, as a professing Christian nation, come under the government of Christ, the Prince of Peace, whose birth was announced with the anthem, "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good will to men," then, and not until then will alcoholism and all other evils be destroyed.

I also note in the Greensboro Daily News of the 20th, Inst., that R. E. Lee, President of Southern Baptist Convention, declared against medicine Christians, and said "our spiritual walls are crumbling, and Christ is our only hope." The source of hope in Christ is in our obedience to His commands, for He has said, "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you."

I rather regret that it was stated that Lee's address was "at the subject", and the times are too serious to admit of highness.

I suppose we all agree with the statement of Vaughn Marley in a recent article in "The Courier - Tribune" that "we should be clothed in sackcloth and covered with ashes of humility, admitting our dependence upon God, and calling upon Him to deliver us." He alone can do this, and will. His trust in, and obey Him. The prophet Jeremiah tells us, "Blessed is the man that trusteth in God" but, "Cursed is the man that trusteth in man."

"We just didn't have any warning," he said, "and didn't even know we were in the station, until the pillars began whizzing by so fast outside the window."
After the crash, and the news spread of what had happened, such a crowd of would-be sightseers appeared that it took a combination of local and military police to hold them back.
An Air Force sergeant peered cautiously over the hole where the locomotive had fallen and said:
"What a hole!"
A local fireman replied:

A Tangled Mess

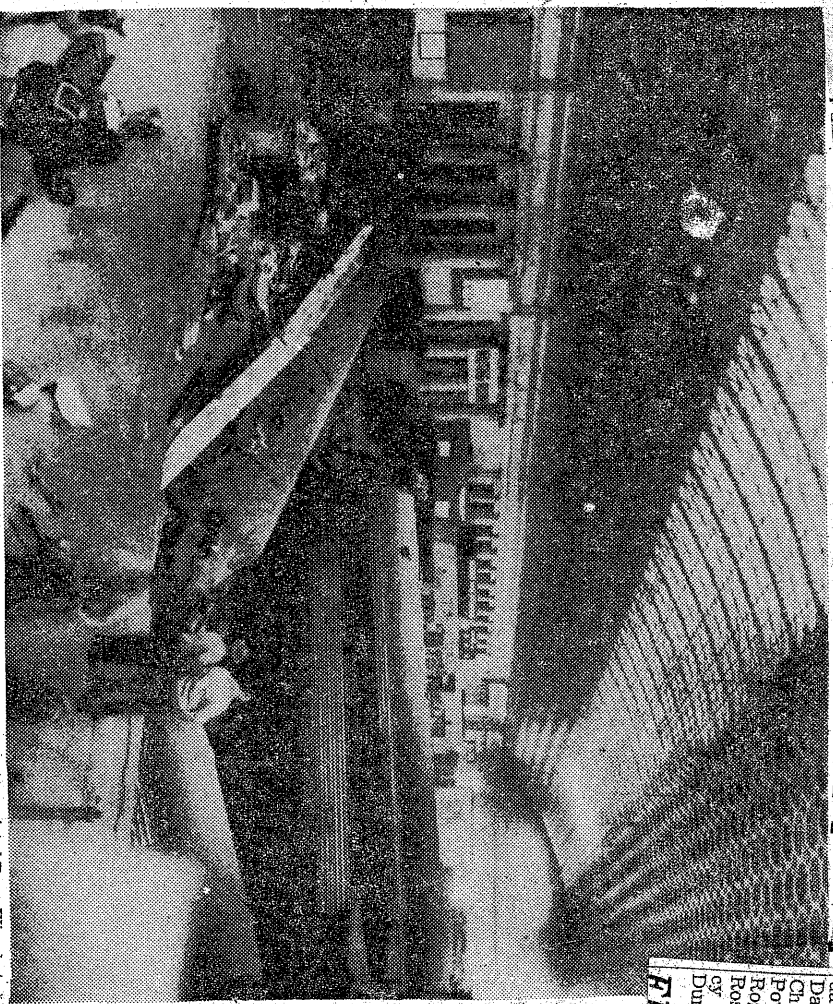

The engine left a tangled mess of broken rails, splintered ties and derailed cars. Of the 16 cars on the train, six left the rails.

The engine hit with such force that something—no one knew exactly what—was thrown off and tore a gaping hole in the roof.
Steam, smoke and dust were everywhere.

But within a half hour nearly all the injured had been taken to hospitals. Within 45 minutes the Washington Terminal Company, which owns the station, was busy cleaning up. Terminal officials said there would be no change in the plans to use 400 Pullmans in the yards to house visitors to the inauguration.

On the runaway train everyone kept calm, reasonably so.

Eleanor Johnson, a staff reporter at a news agency, said one woman screamed and fell to the floor but that after the crash there was no stampede.

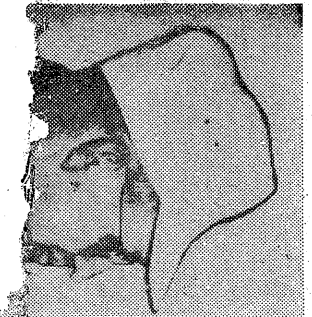

THIS FLOOR WASN'T MADE FOR TRAINS Just before it would have broken into the waiting room at Union Station in Washington, the locomotive of a Pennsylvania Railway passenger train crashed through the floor of the concourse along with another car and came to a stop. END OF AN ERA—Shown above is the last steam locomotive of the Carolina and North-western railroad to appear in Ashboro as fire line placed in service today (a diesel switcher which arrived here for the first time about noon). Southern Railway Becomes Completely Dieselized Road

By STEVE HAYWORTH

After 15 years, the Southern Railway System, one of the nation's largest First Class Common Carriers, finally became the nation's largest completely dieselized road when engine 584 arrived in High Point, Monday afternoon around 1 o'clock. Thus an era of steam motive power which carried the Southern all the way from its construction down through two great World Wars finally came to an end.

And as the steam locomotive era on the Southern ended many railroaders, both on the Southern and foreign lines, have expressed the opinion that the "romance of railroading" came to an end. But that is just the opinion of a few. You will have to be the judge of that. The rails still hold a lot of "romance."

Actually, the Southern didn't start its drive for complete dieselization until 1946, but its first units were delivered in 1938 when Fairbanks-Morse and Co. delivered several diesel powered passenger locomotive-coach combinations. Then in 1939, it got another boost when General Motors Company, the world's largest diesel-electric locomotive builder today, reconditioned the world's first freight locomotive and sent it to the Southern.

World War interrupted the 8,000-mile Southern from continuing its diesel progress until the fall of 1945 when a large passenger diesel order was contracted to Electro-Motive Division of General Motors. Since that time the road which once owned 1,500 steam locomotives has closed the gap rather fast until it became officially 100 percent diesel Monday with the running of Extra 584 North from Ashboro to High Point.

The superheated Consolidation (2-8-0 wheel arrangement type) of some 40 years was replaced with a new and modern 1600 horse-power Alco-GE road-switcher like the ones the SR runs through Greensboro, Charlotte, and many other Tar Heel towns.

Ashboro was proud to have the honor of having the last "iron horse" leave from its yards, but there was no band, no city mayor speech and the majority of the town's people didn't even know what was going on. But in the minds of the railroad men and the town's older population, they knew what was taking place.

The first steam locomotive entered Ashboro at the head of the first Southern Railway train in 1889 over the same roadbed which the last steam locomotive passed over Tuesday.

Since traffic was not too heavy because of the Fourth of July holidays, the train bypassed Randelman, both coming and going, but it's inhabitants heard it's lonesome wail for the last time.

The train, made up of 14 cars, was heard long before it reached Ashboro as she made her way over what is called Tank Hill. One of the station employees said, "I wish I could have a recording of that good steam-locomotive music."

At 10:15, she stormed up the long grade from the Yard Limit sign to the station. After several switching movements around the depot, the train, headed by Conductor John Gray, of Ashboro, took to the south side of town along the old North Southern right-of-way and made its last appearance in South Ashboro. The Southern, or Carolina and Northwestern from High Point to Ashboro, brought the three-mile Norfolk Southern link from Ashboro to the State Prison Camp so it would be able to serve quite a list of industries which include the new General Electric plant when Norfolk Southern abandoned its 23-mile Ashboro-Stair line in December. After filling its tank with water for the last time, engine 584 under the careful hands of Engineer J. A. Lentz, a 30-year veteran with the Southern, departed from Ashboro at 11:50 with only a handful of railroad officials and local citizens looking on.

click-click of the driving rods." Through Sophia and Trinity and finally into High Point, passing the Yard Limit sign at 12:45, the path of this train had been temporarily left behind by the trailing smoke, but it was the end of the "iron horse."

Lentz had been running his engine around 15 miles per hour through the country side of Randolph county, but now he had to slow down. Across several wooden trestles and over a brand new highway underpass the three-car train rolled.

Finally, the end was in sight and setting beside the Yard office was a form of the motive power which was going to replace it, a diesel switcher waiting to switch the train's three cars.

Slowly, Engineer Lentz and Fireman Waynick went about their tasks of inspecting the engine, although they knew it was no use. An official said, "Kill her." That was the end.

"Conductor Gray, I'll sign a Clarence Gray, the conductor's son, and Brakeman H. R. Gates, weren't to be left out either. They had their words to say. Although Gates had little to say concerning the change-over, both the Grays had quite a bit to add to Engineer Lentz's and Fireman Waynick's views. The older Gray, a veteran of 35 and a half years, came right out and made it frank. "It takes the pep out of railroading, but they can't operate them cheaper and I don't blame them for wanting them."

"To come down and tell the truth nothing will seem right without the steam locomotive. I have done a lot of railroading and frankly, I like the steam locomotive a lot better," Gray added.

Clarence, who's been working with Dixie's largest carrier for 12 years, added a few notes: "Steam turbine is the only thing, I believe, that will give the diesel any real economy competition. I really enjoyed working with steam and like it better than diesels."

The crew, Conductor John Gray, Flagman Clarence Gray, of Ashboro, Brakeman Gates, of Salisbury, Engineer Lentz, of Spencer, and Fireman Waynick, of Greensboro; thus had the honor of making the last trip with steam power for both the Carolina and Northwestern and its parent company, the Southern System. The round trip consumed four and a half hours, but they'll never forget those hours.

A steam locomotive's lonesome wail, coming from maybe a steam boat whistle or "booting" whistle, will no longer be heard. But coming in its stead will be the blare of a diesel's air chimes along with its roar instead of a

At 12:05, she hit the bottom of Tank Hill and really started climbing. Fireman Louis Waynick didn't have a stoker with which to fuel the mighty little engine, but only a tender full of coal and a shovel. He labored and finally they pushed over the crest and started a decline which carried them across U. S. Highway 311 and through what is known as Randelman Junction.

During this time, the engineer and fireman weren't just content with their duties. They had a very good conversation going with yours truly concerning the steam locomotive and diesel.

Engineer Lentz was the first to speak out and it was evident that he hated to see the "iron horse" depart. Lentz summed up his 30 railroad years by saying, "I started working with the Southern when they had what they called their 5200's and since that time I have either fired or handled the right hand side of every class locomotive they put on the main line and I certainly do hate to see them pass. But I will continue to say as I have ever since the diesel came on the Southern, 'they (steam) will make a come back some day.'"

He continued by saying, "I might not live to see them return but I just have a feeling they'll come back."

Waynick got in a few words when he had a moments rest between shoveling coal and working the water injector. "I have liked steam locomotives since I was a child and it's a big disappointment to see them go, but you can't hold back the wheels of progress."

All along highway 311 which was crowded with holiday traffic little faces were up against the car windows watching the big black monster make its way. And on the front porch, or maybe back porch, everybody in the houses along the way would come to the windows or porch to wave to the trainman.

One of the engine crewmen summed that up like this: "All of that will lose some of its meaning now. It won't be such a show any more. The roar of air motors and the blare of air chimes won't fascinate them like the wail of a whistle and the

MR. AND MRS. JULIUS EDGEBERT HILL

Mr. And Mrs. Hill Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary

ASHEBORO, Feb. 21—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Reid served the cake, punch and nuts. Messames Bryce Hill, Herman Hill, Joseph Hill and Raymond Nickens assisted. Mrs. Claude Hicks, an old friend and formerly next door neighbor of the Hills, said the good-byes.

The dining room table, covered by a yellow lace cloth over white, featured the huge four tiered anniversary cake, decorated with yellow roses and surmounted with an arched emblem designating the golden wedding anniversary. A three-branched brass candelabra was placed on the table and the floral arrangements were of yellow and white snapdragons and yellow jonquils, with each design being entwined with golden hearts. Napkins were inscribed in gold with "Bert" and "Gertie," a reversion to the names by which Mr. and Mrs. Hill are known.

Floral decorations in the other entertaining rooms consisted of yellow jonquils and yellow chrysanthemums.

Julius Edgebert Hill and Gertrude May Webb were married on Friday, February 12, 1908, at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Tom Sedrest, who lived on the Asheboro-High Point highway.

Illustrating the easy geniality for which he has always been noted, Mr. Hill said: "I had eighty cents in my pocket when I went to get married and the preacher charged me a dollar."

But the lack of funds seemingly did not dismay this couple and their faces, at the ages of 73 and 65, respectively, reflect the peace, happiness and contentment evidenced by a well rounded existence.

Mr. Hill was born in the Popular Ridge community of Tabernacle township, Mr. Hill was born in the Naomi section of Randeman. However, upon the death of her mother before she was two years of age, Mrs. Hill was brought to the home of her grandparents, William and Miranda Julian Clapp, in the Speer community and, since that time, she has lived within a two mile radius of the home of her grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill reside next door to the Neighbors Grove Wesleyan Methodist church, of which both are members.

Collection Of War Records Is Urged Upon People Of Randolph

Mrs. Hal M. Worth, who has been named by the North Carolina Historical Commission, as central collector of war records for Randolph county, has named a partial list of assistant collectors, and is urging all who have material for such records to either send it to her or to one of these assistants.

These assistants are: T. Fletcher Bulla, Roy Cox, Miss Cornelia Ayers and Miss Massa Lambert, all of Ashboro; Miss Hope Hubbard, Farmer; Dr. J. E. Pritchard, and Prof. R. C. White of Ramsour; F. D. McLeod, Trinity; H. H. Hamilton, Miss Claudia Fox and Mrs. LARRY Hammond, all of Randleman; Miss Frances Smith, L. H. Smith, J. A. Martin and J. Ross Elbie Miller Slack of Seagrave. Other assistants will be named in other parts of the county from time to time.

Discussing the matter in detail, Mrs. Worth has addressed the following letter to Randolph county people:

"Today we are in the midst of the greatest war in history and it touches every citizen.

In order to preserve the story of its people in the current war, the North Carolina Historical Commission has made an early start to collect the War Records of the state and to this the commission has the cooperation of the State Office of Civilian Defense and has appointed Forsyth County Sanatorium, who are undergoing treatment.

will be assisted by other collectors and by any one else who is interested. This is not a one-person job.

We in Randolph county want Randolph's part kept so that when the history of this war is written, it may be duly recorded. The kind of record desired for preserving and made accessible will include defense programs and school publications that will have news of the boys in service. All letters are of particular value and should be preserved; letters of a more or less public nature written by soldiers to ministers, teachers, and friends may be obtained and filed. A record of all drives by schools will be of interest.

A record of all defense activities of women's organizations and of all civic clubs is being secured. If your club sponsors knitting or bandage making for the Red Cross, or drives for any defense purpose, keep a record of it.

Scrap books and newspaper clippings and files of the county are important records. The churches will be able to give names of men and women who are in service and any memorial service program, either written or printed will be important. It is the smallest detail that will be of interest. It includes pictures of all soldiers which is very important, giving name, age, home address, and names of parents.

The Ashboro Kiwanis club has done a valuable thing by erecting a service board in the center of town with the names of men and women in service from Randolph county.

The question naturally arises—where to send any material you have. All local librarians are collectors and your minister will be glad to assist.

'AUNT MINNIE' GOES BACK HOME WHEN 'KICKED OUT'

"Aunt Minnie" is back home again. This time the 77-year-old woman, who at one time was worth considerable money, came back home and begged her sister and niece to reactcept her. For several months "Aunt Minnie" Smith has been living with a neighbor by the name of Mrs. Tadlock but when "Aunt Minnie" went "home" begging for help yesterday she told her sister and her niece that she had been "kicked out" by Mrs. Tadlock and was at the mercy of the elements unless she could once again live with them. She was lives wanted her money. But now "Aunt Minnie" has gone back "home" begging that she be forgiven and allowed to once again live with Mr. and Mrs. Bryce Campbell—her niece. Mrs. Nora Norman, her sister, also lives in the Campbell home. When "Aunt Minnie" left to live with a neighbor a few months ago she had considerable funds in the post office, but when she returned yesterday to her sister and her niece she told them she had exhausted her funds and was " broke." "Aunt Minnie" not only caused considerable excitement in High Point but she created some excitement at Camp Butler where she was a mental patient for some time before she went to live with her neighbor, Mrs. Tadlock. While "Aunt Minnie" was a patient at the mental hospital Mrs. Annie Davis Bond visited the institution and after posing as a relative was allowed to see the aged woman. Officials of the institution were advised by a local attorney that Mrs. Bond was not a relative of "Aunt Minnie" so then the excitement at the mental institution subsided. It was after "Aunt Minnie" was released from the mental hospital that she went to live with Mrs. Tadlock. When she was first sent to a mental hospital a group of peowelcomed back "home." There was quite a big "stir" about "Aunt Minnie" a few months ago. Neighbors of the woman charged she was being mistreated by her sister and her niece and that she had been put in an institution because her relation was " money."

ple, composed of Mr. and Mrs. G. Rich and Mr. and Mrs. Ferrill Holder, and several others, gave out a news report that "Aunt Minnie" had been sent to a mental hospital because people with whom she had been living wanted her " money." But now "Aunt Minnie" has gone back to her sister and her niece and she went back weeping—saying she had been "kicked out" and wanted once again to have a home in which she could live "and call home."

Greensboro can now sit back and wonder whether to celebrate or bemoan last month's weather. It was the warmest November since 1891, but it was also the wettest since 1928. Coffer Denies Participation In Holdup

Rev. J. C. Coffer, 22-year-old resident of 455 South Main street, told police today he was merely a bystander when Gray Shackelford of High Point Rte. 3 drew a gun on Adolph Herman, East Washington street clothing store proprietor, Monday evening, and ordered him to hold up his hands.

In a sworn and signed statement Coffer said he and a taxi driver had gone to a restaurant near by to get some cigarettes and while they drank some beer. He said they parted and that he strolled up the street and saw Shackelford enter Herman's store. He said he was curious and followed Shackelford to the rear of the store where Shackelford argued with Herman and drew a gun.

Coffer said he saw there was going to be some trouble and ran to the door. He said that Herman, in great haste, got to the door, first, jumped to the street and slammed the door in his face. He said he had better leave the scene. Coffer said he ran down Washington to Wrenn and along Wrenn to the bus station. From there he said he darted up an alley by the Wesley Memorial Methodist church, crossed Main street and ran behind the Arcade building.

Lost Cove, N. C. Asks Outside World for Road

LOST COVE, N. C. (UP)—A small, weather-beaten shack standing forlornly beside the shagline railroad track does not even have a sign.

A train chugs past once a day, six days a week, winding through steep mountain gorges and ravines on its trip between Spruce Pine, N. C. and Erwin, Tenn., through the most rugged country in eastern North America.

One day the train goes north, the next day south. Hardly ever does it stop at the lonesome shack. When it does put off a shipment of goods, there is usually no one around to see it.

The shack is the only contact with the outside world for Lost Cove, believed to be the most isolated community in the South.

The visitor must get off the train at the shack and trudge a faint mountain path more than a mile across a ridge before the houses of the little community come in view, snuggled in Lost Cove.

Its 50 residents have no telephones, no electricity, no store, no post office, no doctor, not even a state road.

Composed only of 300 acres of privately owned land surrounded by Pisgah National Forest, the tiny Yancey County community is hemmed in by rugged mountains rising up to 4,000 feet above sea level.

Lost Cove has a one-room school and some 15 pupils for the single teacher. Education ends at the eighth grade. Higher education is virtually unknown, since the parents cannot afford to send their children "outside."

The teacher's salary is about $1,000 a year.

On Sunday they gather in the single church. Free Will Baptists.

Lost Cove raises hogs, chickens, potatoes, corn and beans. Its inhabitants do not attempt tobacco because it would be too difficult to get the crop to market. The only money they see is what they receive from cutting dead chestnut saw-logs and acid wood, which they buy on a stumpage basis from the forest service.

Lost Cove's fondest dream is that some time in the not too distant future their isolated community may be linked with the rest of North Carolina by a public road.

Their pleas must be made to the Democratic state administration at Raleigh. Word has leaked out that, almost to a voter, Lost Cove is Republican.

Drive-In Church Draws People to Worship

WARREN, O. (UP)—For about a year now, the Methodist Church in nearby Southington has been holding drive-in church services each Sunday and it appears the technique is popular.

Officials report attendance is up and membership has about doubled to the present figure of 300.

The drive-in feature was inaugurated under the direction of the Rev. Theodore Hubbel, whose sermons are "pipied" outside through a loudspeaker system in the church's bellry. Listeners park on the church grounds.

The tiny church was built in 1838.

Motor Cycle Rider Hurt In Saturday Crash

Mrs. Doris Jones Brady and Byron Farlow, injured in a wreck near Ramseur Tuesday that claimed the lives of Mrs. Brady's husband, Clifton Brady, and an infant son, were reported as resting comfortably in Randolph hospital today.

Mrs. Brady and Farlow were listed as in critical condition shortly after being admitted to the hospital following the wreck. They both suffered head and internal injuries.

George Jones, 60, of Climax, N. C., who suffered a broken right leg and a cut on his forehead, has been in a semi-conscious state since being admitted to the hospital. A warrant charging Jones with manslaughter has been issued by E. H. Morris but has not been served. Jones was listed as driver of one of the cars. Elmer Sanders, driver of the truck, said that the Jones car failed to observe a stop sign and pulled into the path of the truck driven by Sanders.

Two other accidents were reported around the county this morning with one man suffering a broken right leg and jaw.

Lt. W. E. Perdue, of the police department, said that Charles L. Tyson, 20, of Coleridge, suffered a broken right leg in two places and a broken jaw in three places when the motorcycle he was riding crashed into a truck driven by Grover C. Phillips, of Galley, S. C. The accident occurred at the intersection of the old Salsbury road and highway 64 east of town about 8:15 p.m. Saturday.

Lt. Perdue said his investigation showed that Tyson was headed west on highway 64 and the truck was traveling east. The truck made a left turn into the Salsbury road. Tyson ran off the highway, crossed the intersection and crashed almost head-on into the truck. Phillips was uninjured.

Both drivers have been charged with reckless driving. Patrolman W. R. McClure reported a wreck at 6:45 a.m. today on a county road near Worshville in which the two vehicles involved sustained damages estimated at $450. Neither of the drivers was injured. Charles W. Caudle, 29, of Franklinsville, driver of a truck involved in this one, was given a citation for entering the highway without having the right of way.

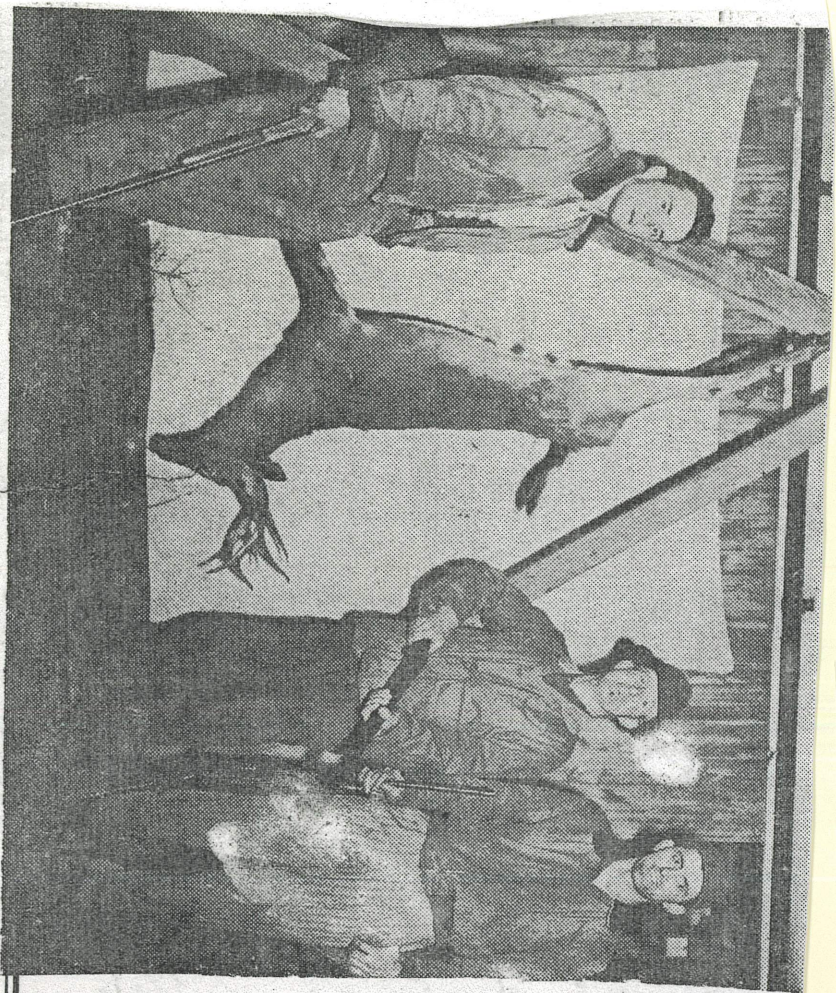

Caudle said he was traveling only two or three miles per hour when he entered the main road and did not see the car, driven by Alfred F. Taylor, of High Point, until he was in the road.

Conner Brothers Arrested Sunday On Liquor Count

Causey Conner, operator of Happy Hollow service station on highway 220 south of Asheboro, was arrested Sunday by Sheriff Coble Maness and Constable Howard Morgan on charges of possession of non-tax paid whiskey for purpose of sale.

Sheriff Maness and Constable Morgan discovered the whiskey hidden deep in the woods behind the service station and hid themselves in the brush to see who would come for it. About 2:30 p.m. yesterday, the two men came to the scene and John Conner dug up a half gallon jar. The two officers jumped up and Causey Conner took off. The sheriff caught him after firing a warning shot into the air. Constable Morgan captured John Conner who did not offer to run.

Portraiture Of Quakerism

(Mrs. Jessie G. Parker Hillsboro, N. C.)

Quakerism may be defined as an attempt under divine influence at practical christianity. Those who practice it feel bound to regulate their opinions, words, actions and even outward demeanor by christianity alone.

They consider themselves bound to give up such of the customs of men, however, general or approved, as militate the letter of spirit of the gospel. Hence they mix but little with the world that they way be less liable to imbue its spirit.

They would attribute any credit to them might be supposed to have to the Supreme Being they have endeavored to obey. Hence will was discovered by means of the scriptures and religious impressions on the mind when it has been calm and still and abstracted from the world.

Moral education is universal among the society, it matters not how various the temper of the young who come under it, they must submit to it. Mor does it signify what may be the disposition or whim or caprices of their parents, they must submit to it alike.

proper to draw the line between amusements which they consider hurtful. Among the latter is dancing, games of chance, cards, dice, concerns in ottery, wagers and speculations by mounted stake. Cards and similar amusements are considered beneath the dignity of man and his moral a christian character, unfitting the mind for the reception of religious principles, and a waste of time.

No Quaker parent would suffer his child nor Quaker schoolmaster the children entrusted to his care, nor any member another to be concerned in amusement of this kind without a suitable reproof.

Music is forbidden because it acts upon our senses. This under certain limitations, seems innocent, yet it has been the misfortune of men to abuse it, never more so than the present time. Music has been so cultivated that it causes to delight unless from the proficient. Such devotion to this one object leaves less time for more important objects - and must be acknowledged a criminal waste of time. It is not conducive to improvement of the moral character - affords no elevation of mind; a sensual gratification and would interfere with duty recommended by Quakers of religious retirement. Vocal music, as it articulates ideas, is forbidden, as it may convey poison to the mind. Some ideas in song are contrary to Quaker notions of morality as is hunting, bacchanian or martial singing. Youth makes no selection, but learn all that all in their way.

The theatre as well as music is abused. Plays, respectable in their origin, degenerated, and particularly immoral in England and were forbidden by George Fox. It is considered injurious to the happiness of man by disgruntling him for the pleasures of religion - this effect arising from its tendency to accustom individuals to flight thoughts - to injure their moral feelings - to occasion an extraordinary excitement of the mind from the very nature of enjoyment it produces, and weans him from domestic enjoyment and love of home.

Dancing is considered unnecessary to Quaker youth - they can walk and carry their bodies with sufficient ease and propriety without it. It is productive of frivolous levity, gives birth to vanity and pride, and is powerful in excitement of malignant passions - hence depriving persons of proficiency of mind, and in the way of his improvement as a moral being.

They produce an affection of knowledge a romantic spirit, a perverted morality, and by creating an indisposition against other kinds of reading, they prevent moral improvement and real delight of mind. Quakers do not look up to either that.

Imagination for any rule in education of their children. As a christian society, they conceive them bound to be guided by revelations only which relate to this subject. Quakers contend that their education has been practically or experimentally, that young Quakers get earlier into the wisdom of life than many others, that there are fewer disorders in the society, that error is corrected and that Quakers persons out of the Society as soon as they become vicious, that it may be rescued

INJURES WOMAN

Jan 11 1942
By Bursting Water Tank Early This Week

First serious injury as a result of the severe cold snap here last weekend was reported early this week when the water coil inside a wood range in the kitchen of Mrs. Wilford Davis, of Sophia, route 1, exploded with such force that Mrs. Davis was scalded severely by steam and hot water on one side of her body.

The coil, which connects with a water tank nearby, was apparently frozen and, since the steam had no place of exit, the tank burst with terrific force to blow a hole in the wall big enough to push an electric stove through, tore several gaging holes through the ceiling, smashed several panes in a window across the room and disfigure the walls of the room with rusty, muddy water.

The exact extent of injuries to Mrs. Davis is not known, but she is at the home of her father, Troy Milkran, nearby, receiving treatment.

Mrs. J. L. Briles Will Be 97 Years Old On Saturday

Party Planned!

Randolph county's oldest living citizen will celebrate her 97th birthday on Saturday from her bed in Griffin clinic where she has been a patient now for more than 12 years.

Her name is Mrs. J. L. Briles and she comes from a long line of folkies that has lived well beyond the celebrated three score and ten years.

A native of Randolph county, Mrs. Briles is a daughter of the late Michael and Anne Jane Spencer. She has three living sisters, all well past 70 years of age. They are Mrs. Louzetta Rush, 94, of Lawrence, Kansas who still walks to church every Sunday morning; Mrs. Dora Lassiter, 76, of Washington, D. C. and Mrs. Robert Harris, 78, of Fayetteville.

When Mrs. Briles was a young girl of 18, she traveled to Fairmont, Indiana with her older sister and an uncle in a wagon. After taking a look at the Hoosier state, she wanted to stay and got herself a job as nurse to an elderly couple at the fabulous salary of $1.50 per week plus room and board. She held this job for about 18 months until her older sister became ill with a fever and died. At this time her parents wanted her to return to North Carolina. She came back and in 1876 was married to the late J. L. Briles.

MRS. J. L. BRILES 97 On Saturday

Younger years, Mrs. Briles could handle farm chores as well as her husband and often aided him in the production of their crops. In addition to this, she also sheared her own sheep; carded and spun her own yarn and made clothes for her family of nine children.

She became a member of Marlboro Friends church in childhood but later moved her membership to Mt. Pleasant Methodist church with her husband and children.

Five of her nine children are still living and are scattered from Asheboro to Hollywood, California. They are Mrs. C. R. Crofts and Roland A. Briles of Asheboro; Mrs. G. W. Crofts of Hollywood, Calif.; Ernest M. Briles of Archdale; and Mrs. T. L. Parker of Mayesville, N. C.

Mrs. Briles entered Griffin clinic on May 9, 1941 because of declining health but she still sits up a little during the day. Doctors who examined her at the time were amazed at her excellent physical condition although she had difficulty in getting around.

During the more than 12 years she has been in the clinic, Mrs. Briles has made many friends and is known among members of the clinic staff as "Grandma Briles." Several of the nurses say that she is a model patient with one of them remarking, "I wish I thought I could have such a sunny disposition if I should live to be her age."

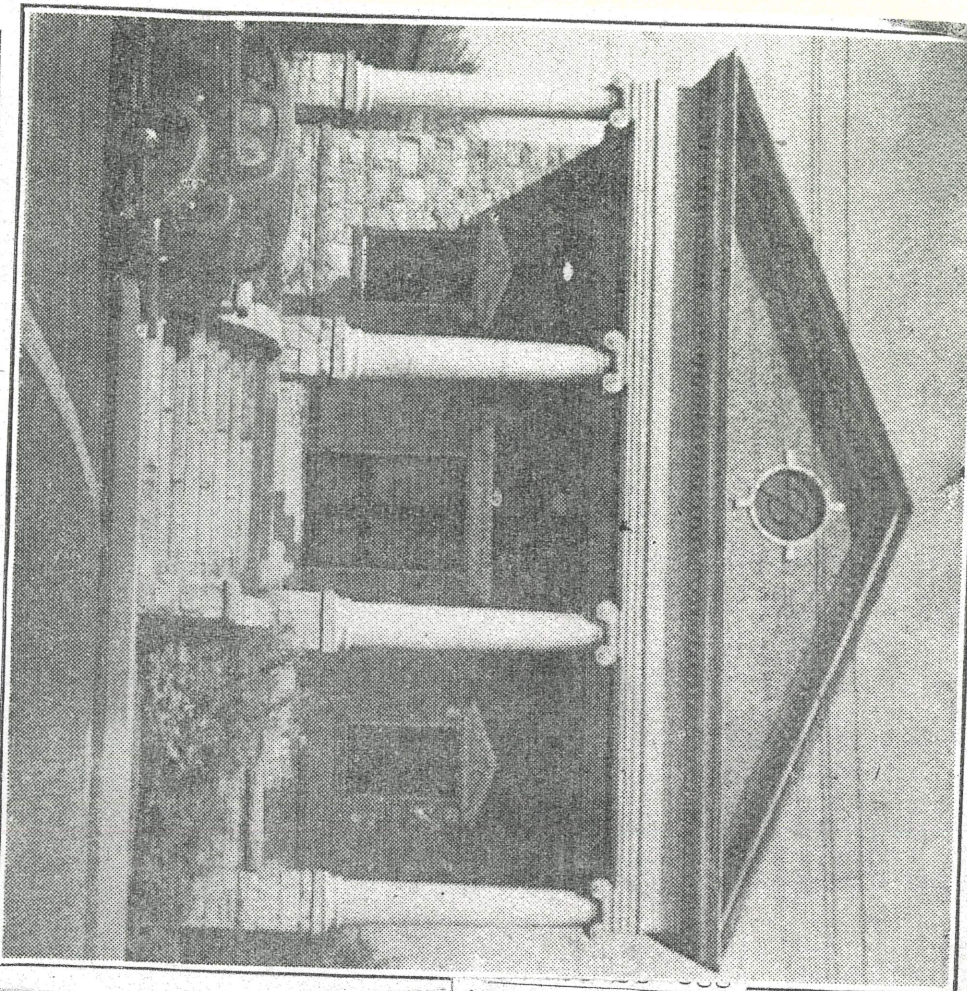

Mrs. Briles was born on a farm near Hoover Hill gold mine west of town, next to the oldest of 12 children. Nothing special has been planned for her birthday on Saturday but she will be looking forward to seeing many of her relatives.

Older Draftees Will Probably Be Behind Lines

FALEIGH, Jan. 17.—The majority of the older men drafted after the next registration—between 36 and 45—probably will be used in "back areas" for such duty as manning anti-aircraft guns. That is the opinion of Adjutant General J. Van B. Metts, who is director of selective service.

The general pointed out that modern war had spread the conflict far beyond the limits of the front-line, combat troops, there was duty, just as important and, in many cases, just as hazardous which older men could do as well. General Metts said that he had received no information from Selective Service Headquarters in Washington on the subject and that he was expressing only his personal opinion. He explained that the term "back area" included almost anything from an industrial center in this country to a city or military concentration in foreign countries.

State Selective Service Headquarters, which has been one of the busiest places in Raleigh for months, is even more so today as plans are being made for the February 16 registration. Previously the local election boards handled the registration but this time the job has been given the local draft boards who do not have the advantage of previous experience. General Metts, however, has been relieved of one worry for the time being, at least. There now seems but little chance that he will have to call out the State Guard until and unless some acute emergency arises. The army has at last come around to the viewpoint that the guard should not be Civilian air raid spotters will have no difficulty distinguishing Axis planes from those of the United Kingdom if they memorize the markings illustrated above. American and British planes have designs of red, white and blue, and Russia has a red star. Watchers on the southern border occasionally may see a swastika of Germany, the round red rising sun emblem of Japan and the Roman fasces on Italian planes.

Regulations Of Draft Boards Are Clarified

State Headquarters Attempts to Dispel Confusion Which Has Arisen

In an effort to dispel some of the confusion which seems to have arisen throughout the state as a result of publication of the new Selective Service Regulations, State Headquarters of Selective Service issued the following statement:

There seems to be widespread misunderstanding of the Selective Service Regulations regarding married men. The following provisions of the law and regulations are pertinent on that subject:

1. Section 5 (e) of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 provides: "... No deferment from training and service shall be made in the case of any individual except upon the basis of the status of such individual, and no such deferment shall be made: ... of groups of individuals ... This provision in the law itself would prevent the blanket deferment of married men, simply because they are married. Neither national nor state headquarters has ever authorized the automatic deferment of married men, regardless of the date of their marriage. On the contrary, local boards have repeatedly been cautioned that each individual case must be considered on its own merits.

2. Deferment in Class III-A must be based on dependency. Section 322.32 of Selective Service Regulations defines a dependent as follows: "A registrant's dependent is any person who is dependent on him when all of the following conditions are satisfied:

(1) Such person must be the registrant's wife, divorced wife, child, parent, grandparent, brother or sister, or must be a person under 18 years of age, or a person who is physically or mentally handicapped, whose support the registrant has assumed in good faith; and

(2) Such person must either be a United States citizen or the holder of a permanent residence in the United States; or

(3) Such person, at the time the registrant is classified, must depend in fact for support in a reasonable manner, in view of such person's circumstances, or income earned by the registrant through his work in a business, occupation, or employment (including in part employment on work relief projects but excluding employment as between September 16, 1940, and December 8, 1941, must not only be an enrollee in the Civilian Conservation Corps, but also that such person is in the National Youth Administration).

(4) Such person must in fact be regularly receive from the registrant contributions (including pay for support of a divorced wife) to the extent of such person's income and contributions must not be in part on or after December 8, 1941, a small part of such person's support. Even though the registrant is unable to furnish such support, he may be considered dependent if he is unable to furnish support through temporary periods because of such person's physical or economic situation, he may be considered dependent if he is regularly contributing to such person's support if such person is dependent on him and the community look upon him as dependent as the principal source of support for such person's support.

(5) Such person must in fact be dependent on him when all of the following conditions are satisfied:

(a) A registrant who married before September 16, 1940, and whose dependency is required in a reasonable manner, in view of such person's circumstances, or income earned by the registrant through his work in a business, occupation, or employment (including in part employment on work relief projects but excluding employment as between September 16, 1940, and December 8, 1941, must not only be an enrollee in the Civilian Conservation Corps, but also that such person is in the National Youth Administration).

(b) A registrant who married after September 16, 1940, and whose dependency is required in a reasonable manner, in view of such person's circumstances, or income earned by the registrant through his work in a business, occupation, or employment (including in part employment on work relief projects but excluding employment as between September 16, 1940, and December 8, 1941, must not only be an enrollee in the Civilian Conservation Corps, but also that such person is in the National Youth Administration).

(c) A registrant who married after September 16, 1940, and whose dependency is required in a reasonable manner, in view of such person's circumstances, or income earned by the registrant through his work in a business, occupation, or employment (including in part employment on work relief projects but excluding employment as between September 16, 1940, and December 8, 1941, must not only be an enrollee in the Civilian Conservation Corps, but also that such person is in the National Youth Administration).

EVERY PRECAUTION SHOULD BE TAKEN DURING THE FIRST SIXTEEN DAYS OF 1942

High Point's fire loss has exceeded that for the entire year of 1941. A disastrous blaze that swept through the Peerless Veneer Company, yesterday morning, accounted for the greater portion of that loss. But there may be some significance in what occurred immediately prior to the fire in that plant which, we understand, was filling defense orders.

Wednesday night, fire broke out at the Snow Lumber Company. Thursday morning, fire broke out at the Marsh Furniture Company.

Thursday afternoon, the Hedgecock Lumber Company, the Humber Coal Company and the Smith Supply Company.

Not long ago considerable damage was caused by fire at the Andrews - Cooper Lumber Company.

Now all this may be sheer coincidence. Fire Chief Ingram has announced that he found no evidence of sabotage.

But sabotage or not in these fires, no chances should be taken in High Point's important industrial plants. Defense units already are being organized in most of this city's factories. No time should be lost in putting these units into operation.

This is no time to sneer at the remoteness of sabotage in High Point. This nation is in the war. Failure to take every possible precaution is inexcusable.

It is a matter of common sense that a father should separate a child from his wife, and announce the policy that "the maintenance of the family as a unit is of importance to the national well-being."
